Offers Services of Rural Teachers In Registration

Appleton Divided in Seven Draft Areas;
Schools are Centers

Henry J. Van Straten, county superintendent of schools, today offered the services of rural school teachers in the selective service registration Oct. 16 while E. E. Sager, worked today to perfect his organization in Appleton.

Van Straten's offer followed a similar one from Appleton's 180 public school teachers through the teachers' council of the Appleton Education association. The Appleton school board voted Tuesday to permit the use of the public schools for registration.

Sager said today that the city will be divided into seven registration districts with ward lines marking the dividing lines throughout the city. Seven public schools have been designated as registration places.

Lawrence college, St. Elizabeth hospital and the Institute of Paper Chemistry registration will be handled directly by John E. Hantschel, director in the county, who will name registrars.

Appleton Plan

Appleton's personnel, including 180 teachers and clerical help in the schools, will be mobilized under the school organization. Plans are being worked out between Sager, Werner Witte, president of the AEA, and Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools.

It is expected that principals of public schools will be appointed general registrars and registration generally will take place in school corridors. School equipment, tables, chairs, etc., will be used.

The city's 180 teachers will work under these heads, tentatively, in shifts from 7 o'clock in the morning to 11 o'clock, from 11 o'clock to 3 o'clock in the afternoon and then both groups from 3 o'clock to 9 o'clock in the evening.

Headquarters for the program will be at Morgan school and the system will be such that registrars may be shifted from one school to another at various times during the day as the registration load warrants.

The committee estimated, on the basis of figures of national authorities, school population figures and election lists, that Appleton has about 4,280 men between the ages of 21 and 35 who will register Oct. 16.

Registration Areas

Here are the registration districts:

First district, First and Second wards, Morgan school.

Second district, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth wards, Roosevelt Junior High school.

Third district, Fourteenth and Fifteenth wards, Edison school.

Fourth district, Twelfth and Thirteenth wards, McKinley Junior High school.

Fifth district, Seventh, Eighth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth wards, senior high school.

Sixth district, Eleventh and Eighteenth wards, Wilson Junior High school.

Seventh district, Ninth and Tenth wards, Jefferson school.

Sager said that Rohan and Witte probably will meet with municipal clerks of the county at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the courthouse and then with chief registrars at 4 o'clock in the afternoon to give them instructions. A final meeting of all those to participate in the registration probably will be held Monday night, Sager said.

Plan in County

While no general school holiday has been declared, the county superintendent said:

"With the approval of the local school boards, schools of the county may close and teachers assist the town, village and city clerks with registration."

Van Straten suggested that in places where the teachers or schools or both are needed, the municipal clerk should contact the teacher and board to make the necessary arrangements. He said that it will be necessary to use schools in a number of the towns because of the facilities they offer in the way of room and lighting.

The county school superintendent said that in cases where schools are not closed, the teachers should

Up and Down

With the Waves
Ambassador, just landed after a stormy Atlantic crossing, said that all the Europeans abroad had felt a steadily increasing and joyful ethical upheaval. We, too, crossing the ocean, have experienced upheavals. Maybe they were ethical, but they certainly weren't joyful. So now we get our ethical pleasures watching the Post-Crescent classified want-ads. The results from this one were very cheering:

DYKSTRA DISCUSSES DRAFT JOB—Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra (right), president of the University of Wisconsin, said following a White House conference that President Roosevelt had discussed the post of draft director with him but that he would have to do "some considering" before saying whether he would accept. Dr. Dykstra was accompanied to the White House by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson (left).

House in Stalemate Over Recess Proposal

Considers Plea To Quash Move Against Reds

Motion to Dismiss Balzer Petition Is Studied by Court

Madison —P— Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann took under advisement today a motion to dismiss the petition of Assemblyman Arthur J. Balzer, West Allis, for a court order to bar four Communist candidates for office from the ballot in the Nov. 5 election.

The motion to dismiss was made by Deputy Attorney General J. Ward Rector and Attorney A. W. Richter, Milwaukee, representing Fred Bassett, Blair, Communist candidate for governor.

Judge Hoppmann denied it temporarily but ordered attorneys for Balzer and Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman to confer with him at 2 o'clock this afternoon, indicating he might make his decision at that time. The petition asked that Zimmerman be compelled to remove the names of the Communists from the ballot.

"Communists are barred as candidates for office because they cannot sincerely take the oath re-registered."

Start Quiz in Plane Tragedy

Senate Committee
To Investigate Crash
At Lovettsville, Va.

Washington —P—The senate commerce committee today began preliminary work on an inquiry into the Lovettsville, Va., airplane crash last Aug. 31 which caused the death of Senator Lundeen (R-Ill.).

The committee was directed to inquire into reports that the senator was under investigation by the department of justice at the time of his death and that one or more agents of the department was aboard the same plane.

The senate voted the $5,000 needed for the investigation late yesterday.

In connection with the Lundeen inquiry, the senate was informed yesterday by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation, that the two bureau employees who died in the Lovettsville disaster were not on the plane to investigate Lundeen.

Hoover wrote in a letter to Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) that special agent Joseph J. Pesci had taken passage en route to his first assignment at Chicago and Margaret L. Turner, a stenographer, was on her way to a vacation.

"For the purpose of the record," Hoover said, "I desire to state with-out any reservation whatsoever that neither Miss Turner nor Mr. Pesci were engaged in any investigation of Senator Lundeen at this or any other time."

Report British Liners Are Laden With Troops

Boston —P—Members of the crews of the American Export line freighter Excelsior reported upon arrival from India and the Far East today that they saw the giant British liner Queen Mary and other big British passenger vessels laden with Australian troops, at Colombo, Ceylon.

They said there were about 20 transports at Colombo, including the Mauretania and Quito, and estimated troops at approximately 100,000.

Henry Named to State Bank Body As Ibach Quits

Chairman Resigns to Accept Position With Federal Reserve Bank

Milwaukee —P— Governor Heil announced today the appointment of Robert K. Henry, Jefferson banker, to the Wisconsin Banking commission.

Henry, former state treasurer, will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Herbert F. Ibach, who resigned as commission chairman to take a position with the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

"Mr. Henry is a very dynamic young man, a fine banker, and an outstanding young executive," the governor's announcement said.

Madison —P—Herbert F. Ibach, chairman of the state banking commission, announced today he had resigned to accept a position with the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

Ibach, who will have charge of Wisconsin banks of the federal reserve system, will make his headquarters here. His post was created recently by the system's board of governors.

Ibach first entered the state service in April, 1929, as an assistant bank examiner in the Eau Claire district. In 1931 he was made director of liquidation, and on Jan. 6, 1934, he was appointed to the commission by former Governor A. G. Schmiedeman.

In 1935 Ibach became chairman of the commission. He was reappointed by former Governor Philip F. LaFollette in 1937.

Governor Heil, in a letter accepting Ibach's resignation, said: "I want to say that you have done a wonderful job in straightening out the affairs of our monetary and banking system of our great state of Wisconsin. I am happy and proud that the national government has recognized a man of your outstanding qualifications."

Assail Attacks On Cathedral

Episcopal Bishops Attack Germans for Raid Upon St. Paul's

Kansas City —P— Bombing of St. Paul's cathedral at London provoked sharp criticism from the Protestant Episcopal church today as they convened for an episcopal session on the divorce problem.

Informed of the news just before the house of bishops met to debate whether to liberalize the church divorce laws, Bishop E. J. Randall, Chicago, commented: "A brutal inhumanity and desecration." He has visited St. Paul's several times.

"The world seems to have gone crazy," was the reaction of Bishop W. A. Lawrence, of Springfield, Mass.

"It is not an unexpected tragedy because it is the policy of aggressor nations to destroy everything in their path," said Bishop H. W. Hobson of Cincinnati. "Nothing is sacred to them."

A revolutionary proposal regarding church marriage and divorce was formally presented to both houses of the church today.

A commission named at the 1937 convention in Cincinnati recommended, after a three-year study, that the church constitution be amended to permit divorced persons to marry with the blessing of the church. Episcopal canon permits only an innocent party in a divorce for adultery to remarry.

Jap Official Denies Pact Aimed at U.S.; Americans Leaving Country

Tokio —P— Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka declared in a broadcast today that the new German-Italian-Japanese treaty of alliance "is a peace pact directed for the United States and not against the United States."

"I wish earnestly that such a powerful nation as the United States in particular and all other nations at present neutral do not become involved in the European war or come by any chance into conflict with Japan because of the China incident or otherwise," Matsuoka said.

"Such an eventuality, with all the possibility of bringing awful catastrophe upon humanity is enough to make one shudder if one stops to imagine the consequences."

Matsuoka, referring to Prime Minister Churchill's announcement in London Tuesday that Britain would reopen the Burma road to war supplies to China, denied that the agreement closing the road on July 17 was conditional on Japan's conclusion of peace with China in the ensuing three months.

An exodus of American women and children in response to state department advice gained momentum tonight amid the growing conviction that the zero hour in Japanese-United States relations is approaching.

No panic was discernible, but there was a nervous tension as households here were rapidly broken up, furniture packers overwhelmed with orders and banks crowded with foreigners attempting to transfer funds.

A partial survey showed that about 250 Americans either had booked passage from Japan or applied for reservations.

Intense speculation was aroused by United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew's two-hour conference

Hearings Ordered on Reports of Added
Pre-Election Jobs

Washington —P—The senate campaign investigating committee today ordered public hearings next week on reports that federal relief jobs were being increased prior to the November election.

Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) said the special senate group decided upon the hearings after Howard Hunter, acting WPA commissioner, had requested a public discussion of the charges.

At the same time Gillette directed investigators of the senate committee to look into complaints that the agricultural adjustment administration had engaged in political activities in "violation of the Hatch act."

Famous Cathedral Hit As Nazis Raid London

Germans Say Docks Area Chief Target

Washington —P— Alexander Kirk, American charge d'affaires in Berlin, has been called back to Washington for consultation.

The state department, announcing this today, said Kirk might later assume the charge d'affaires post in Rome because William Phillips, ambassador to Italy, was too ill to return immediately to his post.

Edward L. Reed, charge d'affaires at Rome, also has been ordered back to the state department.

Berlin —P— The German high command asserted today that the "heaviest damage was inflicted on docks in the Thames bend" in London during an all night raid which followed an incessant day attack.

Even before the high command issued its daily communique fresh crews of airmen, favored by the weather, were reported pounding anew at England in daylight raids.

Informed sources declared that several hundred night fliers unloaded more than 200,000 pounds of explosives on London.

Reviewing action of the last 24 hours, the high command reported: Direct hits which destroyed hangars, barracks and grounded planes at St. Eval, Penrose and St. Merryn, among "several" airports attacked in central and southern England.

Sinking of two British merchantmen by submarine and several bomb hits amidships on a British merchant ship at sea, causing it to halt, break into flames and list, and bomb the port of Cardiff, Wales, which caused fire.

The high command dismissed British raids on German and German-occupied territory with the statement that the damage could be quickly repaired. It acknowledged only that "some apartment houses were destroyed and one farm building burned."

Ten British planes were said to have been destroyed yesterday, while four German planes were reported missing.

Defense Agencies Fund Bill Signed

Washington —P— President Roosevelt signed into law today a $28,132,013 appropriations bill, which contains approximately $170,000,000 for agencies contributing to the national defense program.

The measure contains $40,000,000 for the development of not more than 250 public airports, to be selected by a special board, in connection with expansion of the military air force.

Batista Is Sworn in As Cuba's President

Havana —P— Fulgencio Batista, 39-year-old former army sergeant, was sworn in today as president of the Cuban republic.

The oath was administered at noon by Chief Magistrate Edelman of the supreme court. Gustavo Cuervo Rubio was sworn in as vice president.

Representatives of 34 nations watched the ceremony which gave the reins of government to Batista, who had been Cuba's real leader for more than six years as a military "strong man."

FDR Confers With Hull and Welles

Washington —P— President Roosevelt scheduled a conference with Secretary Hull and Undersecretary Welles today, presumably on the foreign situation, as he strove to clear his desk prior to leaving the capital tonight on a trip through Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Stephen Early, press secretary, said the state department chieftains had asked for the appointment this afternoon.

Asked whether the United States and England were conferring on the troubled situation in the Far East, where Japan has announced an alliance with the European axis, Early replied:

"I don't know. I think the president said some time ago that the discussions were almost continuous."

Referring to the radio address which Mr. Roosevelt is to make at 8 o'clock p. m. (C. S. T.) Saturday from his train at Dayton, Ohio, Early said the president, "speaking to the entire hemisphere," would elaborate on the "all for one and one for all idea."

British Citizens to Leave Rumania

Bucharest —P— Departure of all British citizens from Rumania "appears to be only a matter of a few days," sources close to the British legation said today as German troops continued to penetrate into the country to prepare the way for stronger forces to follow.

Although reluctant to abandon their $300,000,000 investment in the rich Rumanian oil fields and their most important "listening post" in the Balkans, the British admittedly were apprehensive of being trapped by the advancing nazis if they hesitated too long.

Many Britons already have left the country.

Sir Feginald Hoare, British minister to Rumania, remained at his post in Bucharest, but it appeared he had virtually exhausted all possibilities of obtaining some kind of official reassurance from Rumanian officials which would permit Britain to continue normal diplomatic relations with the new Iron Guard state.

Informed British sources in London said Sir Reginald had "pretty much of a free hand" in dealing with the situation in Bucharest and declared it was possible—though not probable—he might sever relations with Rumania without asking counsel from London.

A 40-car train loaded with German troops was reported speeding into the interior of Rumania after crossing the Hungarian frontier near Timisoara.

Germans in Bucharest were pleased by a government censor's order halting publication of the Polish emigrant newspaper Kurir Polski.

Only a fraction of the 30,000 poles who fled to Rumania a year ago to escape the German invasion of their homeland still remain in the country.

Says High Tax Levies Cutting Property Value

Madison Mayor Asks
Officials to Ease
Load on Real Estate

Milwaukee —P— "Property today is bearing such a large portion of the cost of government that it is losing its value," Mayor James R. Law of Madison, told the League of Wisconsin Municipalities convention today.

"There are many people who have the feeling now that it is not desirable to own property," said Law, who is league president.

"Should this trend continue, it is obvious that eventually government will kill the goose that lays the golden egg. No resource may be left unexploited to prevent further sapping of property owners' very life blood."

He urged municipal officials to redouble their efforts to check a trend toward loading higher taxes on real property.

Mayor G. F. Oaks of Oshkosh explained a new system which his city worked out in an effort to prevent traffic accidents near schools.

He said that under a new system of school zone marking all public utility poles in school areas had been painted with the colors red, white and blue, the combination recently adopted by state law for school buses.

City Manager Henry Traxler of Janesville declared that municipal officials must pay increasing attention to public relationships, warning that one unfavorable contract with a city department or employee might influence a citizen's attitude toward the entire municipal government.

Elliott Reports For Active Duty

Dayton, Ohio —P— Elliott Roosevelt began his career as an army air corps captain today determined to avoid "political fights" over his commission.

Roosevelt, second son of the president, is assigned to the procurement branch of the materiel division at Wright field.

He arrived at the field yesterday and was halted at the gate by a sentry who forced him to prove his identity. Roosevelt was admitted after producing a telegram from Colonel Oliver P. Echols, assistant chief of the materiel division.

Roosevelt has had no previous military experience. He is 30 years old.

The captain and his wife drove here from Fort Worth, Texas. They will live in a downtown hotel because all officers' quarters at the field are occupied.

Hollywood —P— Another "Captain Roosevelt" — Jimmy, the president's eldest son — soon will join Brother Elliott in active military service, but when he isn't busy training he'll keep an eye on his film interests.

Roosevelt, busy promoting "slot machine movies," is an officer in the 22nd battalion, marine corps reserves, on "stand by" order for active duty. Director W. S. Van Dyke is major of the unit of 300, which includes many film technicians.

Britain, U. S. Ponder Moves In Far East

London —P— Germany's night raiders rode back to London tonight on relentless time schedule to spread the work of devastation already wrought throughout the city.

Bombs began falling in the suburbs as compact groups of raiders worked their way through a tremendous screen of anti-aircraft shells. It was the thirty-fourth straight night attack.

Before they returned, the British air ministry disclosed that the high altar of St. Paul's cathedral had been smashed in an earlier assault, perhaps during last night's longest darkness raid of the war.

Tonight's raid followed three swift daylight forays, beginning this forenoon.

St. Paul's famous for centuries as a London landmark, is the work of Sir Christopher Wren, seventeenth century English architect, and contains the tombs of Wellington and Nelson, two of Britain's greatest fighting men.

A single German bomb, missing the great dome already menaced many times in the last two months, plunged through the roof at the eastern end and, with a terrific roar, smashed to dusty fragments the altar where generations of Englishmen had worshipped. The choir stalls, the air ministry said, were undamaged.

No date was fixed for the destruction, but it was disclosed that a famous church was hit shortly before midnight last.

Discuss Cooperation
The question of withholding war supplies from Japan and possibilities of American-British cooperation in the Pacific ocean are being discussed with the United States, R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, told the house of commons today.

Butler avoided giving direct replies to numerous questions concerning the United States and Japan in an exchange with Colonel Joseph C. Wedgwood, who asked: "What progress has been made in regard to British-American cooperation in the Pacific?"

Whether the Russian, Chinese and Netherlands governments were co-operating or being consulted.

Whether there was possibility of American protection for the Dutch East Indies.

"The questioner may rest assured that the importance of contact with friendly governments on matters of common interest is fully appreciated by his majesty's government," Butler replied.

Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, taking note of demands for greater air-raid protection, told commons with scornful irony that if Britons expect complete immunity from exploding bombs they should "sue for peace now."

"We knew what to expect when we entered the war," he said, "and we are now experiencing as civilians what was experienced by soldiers in the last war."

"We must go through with it or surrender—and we are not going to surrender," he shouted.

The southwesterly gale which whipped the channel yesterday was still raging today, with intermittent periods of heavy showers and bright sunshine when the first waves of German planes moved against England.

Nightlong Attack
The first alarm sounded only a short time after the last of the night raiders had gone. The alarm was brief.

Ceaseless waves of nazi warplanes participated in the nightlong assault.

Hansen Named Head Of Teachers' College

Stevens Point —P— William C. Hansen, superintendent of Stoughton schools for the last eight years, has been named president of Central State Teachers' college here to fill a vacancy caused by the death last month of Ernest T. Smith, it was announced today.

Regent Wilson S. Delzell, making the announcement, said Hansen had been chosen for the position at a meeting of the normal schools board of regents in Madison yesterday.

The board also appointed Prof. Charles F. Watson, now director of intermediate and junior high school departments, as acting president at the college to serve until Dec. 1 when Hansen takes charge.

Milwaukee Hunter Is Killed in Accident

Rice Lake —P— Frank Pearson, 65, of Milwaukee, accidentally shot while duck hunting, bled to death in his duck boat on Hemlock lake northeast of here late yesterday.

Coroner A. J. Hyllengren said the hammer of Pearson's shotgun apparently caught on the boat seat. The charge almost severed Pearson's leg below the knee. He had been hunting alone.

Prominent Michigan
Educator Succumbs
Marquette, Mich. —P— Webster Houston Pearce, 64, president of Northern State Teachers' college and former state superintendent of public instruction, died today following an illness of several weeks.

He had been associated 44 years with Michigan schools and colleges.

Winnebago Ice Fishing Season Is Cut 15 Days

State Conservation Commission Fixes April 15 for Pike Fishing in Wolf River

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Tightening of game regulations in the Winnebago area, begun several years ago, continued here yesterday afternoon as the state conservation commission voted for an ice fishing season in Lake Winnebago for the forthcoming winter of only 30 days compared with 45 days last winter.

The new season for ice fishing will be from Jan. 1 to Feb. 1. The sturgeon speering season will open on Feb. 1 and continue for a month.

Last year the open season for ice fishing on the lake extended from Dec. 20 to Feb. 5.

The commission also adopted a rule that all fishing shanties must be removed from the lake before March 1 in order to prevent unnecessary boating hazards of the ice breaker and decreed that each shanty must be so built that the warden can enter easily with the aid of an outside ladder. They must also be marked with the names and addresses of their owners.

Howard Leppia, Brillant, a leader in the Wisconsin conservation congress asked the commission to forbid the erection of sturgeon fishing shanties on the ice until shortly before the Feb. 1 opening. Under past regulations he declared many violators were able to catch sturgeons under the guise of fishing for pike. The commission seemed to like the idea but dropped the subject when they decided that it would be difficult to distinguish a pike shanty from a sturgeon shanty.

Other ice-fishing regulations this winter in the northeastern Wisconsin area:

Outagamie county all waters closed at all times.

Willkie Says Roosevelt Has 'Bungled' Job

Charges New Deal Not Able to Handle Post-War Affairs

BY THEODORE F. KOOP
Enroute with Willkie to Providence, R. I.—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie declared at New London, Conn., today that the Roosevelt administration had bungled both domestic and international affairs and therefore should not be entrusted with handling the country after the European war ends.

The nominee, discussing the two term tradition, said the only argument offered by the third term supporters was that Europe is in a crisis.

No man appreciates any more than I do the critical situation abroad," Willkie said. "No man understands more than I do the consequences on the United States, but let us think beyond that crisis."

"Brought On Crisis"

In my judgment the present administration has been one of the biggest factors in bringing on that crisis. But let us assume that the war is over within six months. What is going to be the condition in Europe? There is bound to be inflation in Europe and competition with the United States by low-paid labor.

"Do you want this administration following the war to handle the domestic affairs of the United States and take it down the road to bankruptcy and lose every social gain that labor has made?"

"No," the crowd shouted.

"This administration has bungled foreign affairs just as it bungled domestic affairs," continued Willkie, "and that is becoming apparent to everybody."

When Willkie's train pulled into New London at 8 a. m. (C. S. T.) a crowd packed around the railroad station was singing "We want Willkie in the White House." The Willkie train was supported by British representatives Charles Halleck (R-Ind.) who placed Willkie's name in nomination at the Republican convention, introduced Paul Cornell, the party's senatorial candidate.

Crowd of 10,000

He presented Willkie and the crowd set up a long shout. Chief of Police William Babcock estimated the attendance at 10,000.

Willkie described yesterday's turnout along his Connecticut route.

Asiatic fleet, over the beating of a sailor from the United States cruiser Augusta by Japanese police.

From Africa came news that General Charles de Gaulle, whose "free French" forces supported by British were repulsed recently in an attempt to take over Senegal, had landed at Duala and raised his standard over the Cameroons.

German troops, meanwhile, continued to flow into Rumania with the tacit approval of the Bucharest government, and British interests accepted as inevitable the loss of their rich Rumanian oil holdings, representing an investment of some $200,000,000.

Sir Reginald Hoare, British minister, remained at his post in Bucharest, but most Britons were fleeing the country and a break in diplomatic relations between the two governments was forecast.

Italian military maneuvers opposite the Yugoslav frontier, witnessed by Premier Mussolini, caused observers in Rome to wonder whether it duce might use his well-rested European army to participate in an axis thrust toward the near eastern petroleum fields.

The possibility of a three-pronged thrust—in Britain, the Balkans and Egypt—was raised as London newspapers reported that Colonel General Wilhelm Keitel, Adolf Hitler's right-hand military man, had taken command of the Italian forces in Africa.

A revival of activity by Italian patrols near the desert outpost of Sidi Barrani led British military men to believe the long-awaited Italian "push" into Egypt might not be long in developing.

GARNER GOES HOME AGAIN—After a fortnight's stay in Washington, Vice President John N. Garner said "Goodbye, boys" and headed for his Texas home again with a "no comment" reply to all questions. Garner first went home after the Democratic national convention turned down his bid for the presidential nomination.

Axis Seems Worried Over U.S. Position

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York—(AP)—There are very positive signs of axis worry in the fact that Signor Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia, has taken up into a high mountain, shown him the kingdoms of the world and offered him a princely bribe if he will "re-main neutral" until the destruction of the British empire has been effected.

Specifically Canada, Newfoundland, Bahamas, Bermuda and Jamaica have been dangled before Sam's eyes. He might also get Australia and New Zealand.

That offer was made yesterday just so there wouldn't be any misunderstanding. Il Duce's paper the day before announced that Germany, Italy and Japan were prepared to go to war with America if we rejected the triple alliance offers and "threw down the gauntlet."

I doubt if the three musketeers really believe Uncle Sam would knife anybody—either Joe or friend—for gain. However, their threats and overtures indicate their anxiety over England's increasing strength—admittedly due in no small degree to the material assistance which the United States is giving.

Amicable Gestures

It also is significant that these moves of the triple alliance are coincident with a sudden display of amicable gestures among Russia, America and Britain—with Britain strategically situated ally, Turkey also waving a friendly hand to the Muscovites. Active collaboration by Washington, London and Moscow is the last thing the axis should have particular concern over the situation at this precise time since indications are that Messrs Hitler and Mussolini are on the verge of launching a new great offensive against Britain—quite likely in the Mediterranean theater. It is imperative from the standpoint of their prestige both at home and abroad that they succeed in this new venture in view of the Nazi failure thus far to crush England by direct assault on the British Isles.

What the axis partners have in mind is a matter of conjecture. It is unsafe these days to put too much trust in the "obvious," but many observers inclined to the belief that Mussolini's review of twenty thousand fascist volunteers on the plain of Padua today might indeed be the prelude to a new axis drive. It is important, as showing affiliations to note that delegations from Hungary, Rumania, Spain and Bulgaria were present at this great demonstration.

May Resume Drive

The British military in Egypt believe that the Italians under Marshal Graziani are about to resume their adventurous drive into the desert wastes from Libya. That would be logical since this operation presumably would be the center of the battle of the Mediterranean.

London hasn't abandoned the thought that the Mediterranean offensive may be accompanied by an attempt at invasion of England. It also is quite possible, as I have mentioned before, that the axis may move down through the Balkans at least to the extent of taking over Greek bases for operations.

One thing seems quite clear. The axis will have to depend very heavily on its air forces in the coming conflict. The British navy is supreme in the Mediterranean and

King Asserts Right To Appointive Powers

Milwaukee—(AP)—Thomas R. Klug, of Oconomowoc, preparing for the Democratic State Central committee meeting here Saturday, said yesterday that he would fight any effort to deprive him of his appointive powers.

At a meeting of the committee Monday, some members of the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin sought to control the state machinery through a resolution to create a post of executive secretary to direct and manage all activities and business details of the statewide campaign of the entire Democratic ticket.

The meeting was adjourned before a vote could be taken.

King asserted that as state chairman he had the right to appoint the vice chairman and the state secretary of the party.

Loomis Charges Heil 'Misled' State Labor

Janesville—(AP)—Orland S. Loomis, Progressive candidate for governor, said last night that if elected he would "work to re-enact Progressive labor legislation."

He declared that "organized labor in Wisconsin was misled by the present governor and his legislative wrecking gang."

While great land operations may develop in due course the air will be a vital factor. This undoubtedly presents a real danger to Britain, because of the superiority of the axis in number of planes.

War Situation Today

England and U. S. Considering Possible Action in Pacific

Discussions between the United States and Great Britain on the possibilities of joint defense action on the Pacific were reported today by R. A. Butler, undersecretary of foreign affairs, in a statement to the house of commons.

The disclosure—indicating a tightening Anglo-American bond against the new Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance—came as Londoners trod after through debris-littered streets after another night of terror from the skies.

A German bomb crashed through the roof of 250-year-old St. Paul's cathedral, burial place of Britain's warrior heroes and Nazi raiders reported four great fires raged today in the vicinity of the houses of parliament in London.

The British air ministry did not disclose when St. Paul's was damaged, but a "lambent church" was reported last night by Nazi raiders during the longest and fiercest night attack of the war.

St. Paul's great high altar, known to thousands of American visitors, was destroyed as the bomb crashed through the east roof of the huge-domed edifice.

The cathedral built by Sir Christopher Wren after the Great Fire of 1666 and opened for service in 1696 houses the tombs of Nelson, Wellington and Earl Jellicoe. Admiral Beatty and many other famous Britons.

German daylight raiders returned to the attack in the forenoon carrying on the worst assault yet rained on the empire capital.

Hitler's high command reported the heaviest damage was inflicted on docks at the Thames bend and described the raid as "relatively attacks" for R. A. F. raiders in Berlin.

More than 500 streets in the battered city were hit by a dust-to-dawn storm of fire bombs and high explosives which set metropolitan and suburban areas.

Nazi said an armada of several hundred planes scattered 200,000 pounds of bombs on the British capital.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill

witnessed the end of one of the raiders, picked out of the skies by anti-aircraft "arches," and saw three parachuting Nazi airmen drift to earth in the glare of searchlights.

Two formations of German warplanes were reported driven off in a terrific dogfight with R. A. F. planes over an East Anglian town, where a bomb scored a direct hit on a refugee home killing three women and probably fatally wounding nine others.

British bombers continued to pound Nazi invasion preparations, the air ministry reported, scoring hits on destroyers at Brest and attacking German barge concentrations in Holland, shipping at Le Havre oil plants and other objectives in France.

The air ministry said R. A. F. bombers also struck again at the great Krupp munitions works at Essen and bombed a munitions plant at Cologne during the night.

Diplomatic "oil" to soothe the Far East crisis came meanwhile in a statement attributed to Japan's Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka.

Countering blunt hints from Berlin and Rome that the new axis in the United States, Matsuoka was quoted in a broadcast by Domei, Japanese news agency, as declaring the pact "is directed for the United States and not against the United States."

I wish earnestly that such a powerful nation as the United States would not become involved in the European war or come by any chance into conflict with Japan because of the China incident or otherwise," he said.

At the same time navy officials in Shanghai announced that the commander of the Japanese gendarmes in Shanghai had tendered a formal apology to Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander of the United States

DIES OF INJURIES
Durand—(AP)—Eugene Dalton, 48 of Baldwin, who was injured in a traffic accident on a fog-shrouded highway, died yesterday.

Crowds Delay Schedule
He spoke to a noisy crowd estimated by police at 42,000 after he had campaigned 116 miles by automobile through Connecticut manufacturing communities. Both Willkie and his aides expressed pleasure at the size and enthusiasm of the gatherings which put him two hours behind schedule.

When the candidate stood on a plane platform in the midst of a singing New Haven throng he told his hearers that he never felt better. Declaring that the New Deal had been "stepping on the neck of the little businessman" he offered six proposals to aid that group:

1 "I propose that we stop changing the rules under which business operates." Instead of making it as difficult as possible for the little businessman to predict what will be happening next month or next year let us make it as easy as possible."

2 "It is essential that the little businessman know that his government is for him, not against him. Under a Republican administration there will be no doubt whatever about this."

3 "We must simplify business regulations. In 1938 business had to make out nearly 136,000,000 returns for the federal government." "No wonder," he added extemporaneously, "businessmen have no time to attend to their business."

4 "We must revise the tax structure. Never before in history

Valley Lags In Child Aid

Pay Less Than State Average Sum, Welfare Bureau Records Show

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

Madison — Counties in the Fox river valley and vicinity continue to lag behind the state average in the disbursement of aid to dependent children or mother's news on the state welfare department showed here today.

Although the state-average grant per family for dependent children's support is $38.22 most of the valley counties pay less than that sum per family unit, statistics released show.

The last report show that 28,365 needy children in 12,410 Wisconsin families are now getting slightly less than $300,000 a month in aid jointly provided by the state, localities and Washington.

Figures on the number of children and the average grant per family containing dependent children for the northeastern Wisconsin area counties were reported as follows:

House Styles are Shown in Exhibit

Lawrence college is sponsoring an exhibit entitled "The Wooden House in America" from the Museum of Modern Art at New York City.

The exhibit is being shown in the old armory on the campus and will remain there through Oct. 21.

The exhibit traces the changes in style as well as methods of construction in America from the early massive type of hand-hewn log houses and the heavy frame construction of new England colonial homes, through the refinements of the Georgian and the development of the light staid frame and finally modern experiments in construction. Samples of typical American building woods as well as wood products such as plywood, pressed-wood and wood fibre panels are shown.

Following the historical and explanatory material is a group of 10 of the most recent wooden houses most of them never before shown and most of them costing between five and fifteen thousand dollars. Included are the Thomas House at Somers Maine, the George Hovey House at Breuners, the House for Mrs. J. M. Hixson at Cohasset, Mass., a new house by Paul Lloyd Wright to be built in Bernardsville, New Jersey, and a house in California by Harold Harlow Harris one of the most popular architects of the west coast. Also included are notable houses by younger men — John Yeran, Gregory Ann Carl Koch, John Funk and A. James Speyer.

Treasurer Receives State Road Aid Check

Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Outagamie county treasurer, has received a road aid check for $64,381.12 from the state highway department. The amount includes $2,987.75 for July maintenance, $150 for July supervision and $483.37 for $1,814.35 and $1,995.00 for the placing of skin mats during July.

Kaws, Shawano Expected to Play Wide Open Tilt

Neither Squad Has Had Defense Tested So Far This Season

Kaukauna — If previous records are any indication, football fans will see a wide open and high scoring game Friday evening as Shawano comes to town for the homecoming tilt.

For the last ten seasons two touchdowns has been the least scored in any game. So far this season Shawano has tallied 8 in two games and Kaukauna has pushed over 14 in three.

Both eleven are reputed to have a tight defense, but no team has really tested either. While Shawano and Kaukauna are two of the best teams the Northwestern conference has ever produced, the rest of the league this fall is below par. Coach Paul E. Little put his gridders through a long drill yesterday, including a scrimmage session. Included was instruction on pass defense and offense.

Sound Pass Attack
If the Indians succeed in stopping the rushing of Karl Giordana, Bob Danner and Willis Ranquette, which so far no team has done, the Kaws can take to the air with what shapes up as the best aerial attack in the loop. Five completions in seven attempts Saturday at Neenah gave Kaukauna a season's record of 15 out of 21. Five of Giordana's tosses have been good for touchdowns.

Shawano, with Bill Reed doing the throwing, has used passes sparingly this fall. There is more than a suspicion in the Kaukauna camp that the Indians have kept much of their power under cover until tomorrow night's game.

Tonight the homecoming parade and bonfire will be held. City trucks hauled material for the fire yesterday, to be set off near the ballpark. A police escort and the high school band will head the parade, in which high school groups, business organizations and others will enter floats. High and junior high school students will march in the parade.

Work of moving the lights from the ball park to the athletic field has progressed well, and everything will be in shape for Kaukauna's first night football game. More power than the customary minimum has been arranged for.

Cards Outline Garbage Rules

Kaukauna Residents Receive Instructions For Pick-Up System

Kaukauna — Being distributed this week to Kaukauna residents are 2,500 cards outlining rules and regulations for garbage and rubbish collection, according to Lester J. Erenzel, city clerk.

Rules listed on the cards are as follows:

A galvanized can with cover, not to exceed 10 gallons, should be secured; all garbage must be drained and wrapped; do not place rubbish, tin cans or glassware with garbage; garbage and rubbish cans must be placed in convenient place for collector outside the home; garbage can must be kept clean; collection will be made once a week in the residential district and twice a week in the business district from Oct. 1 to May 1, and twice a week in the residential district and three times a week in the business district, from May 1 to Oct. 1.

All rubbish, tin cans, glassware, ashes, glass, etc., must be out in separate containers not larger than a bushel basket. Tree trimmings, brush, shrubbery and vines must be cut in lengths of four feet in diameter; garbage and rubbish not properly taken care of and placed in proper containers will not be picked up. For information or complaints, the superintendent of public works, Thomas Reardon, is to be called.

Registrars Named For Service Draft

Kaukauna — Chief registrars for Kaukauna's four voting booths, where men 18 to 35 will be registered for selective military service Wednesday, were announced yesterday by Lester J. Branzel, city clerk.

They are Al A. Harkheim, First ward; L. J. Merlo, Second ward; John Van de Loo, Third ward, and John N. Corcoran, Fourth and Fifth wards. The chief registrars generally supervise the registration, and return used and unused forms to the city clerk.

A total force of at least 50 workers will be on duty at one time or another from 7 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night, Branzel said. The election boards are being used as a nucleus for the staffs.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Police Association Will Sponsor Movie Truck Bids Sought

Kaukauna — Plans for the group's annual benefit movie, to be held at Rialto theater Nov. 12, 13 and 14, were made yesterday as Police-men's Protective association, local No. 23, met at Black Creek. Ray Roloff, Black Creek chief of police, was chairman.

School Offers New Courses for Women

Kaukauna — The vocational school is expanding its homemaking department by offering new and varied courses to the women of Kaukauna. William T. Sullivan, director, said yesterday.

Of special interest to the working girl or the bride-to-be is the supper club, which meets at 5:30 on Tuesday evenings. Miss Catherine Marks, instructor, is arranging the course especially for those who have not had much experience in cooking but would like the practice of planning, cooking and serving simple meals. Meal planning and kitchen management are part of the course.

For women who like to entertain and are looking for new ideas, the series of demonstrations on "Eating Around the World," should prove helpful, Sullivan said. This course will be offered on Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock, and will consist of six or eight sessions.

If enough are interested a luncheon club will be organized to meet from 10:30 to 1 o'clock Wednesdays. The class will cater to women who have had experience in cooking but are looking for new meal combinations.

Miss Marks can be reached any morning at the school between 9:30 and 10 o'clock for help in menu planning, Sullivan stated.

Andrew Rietveld Dies After Short Illness

Surviving are the widow; two daughters, Mrs. Minnie Van Dalwig, Kimberly; Mrs. George Hartjes, Combined Locks; a son, Louis, route 3, Kaukauna, and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 9 o'clock Saturday morning at St. Mary church, Kaukauna, by the Rev. Alphonse Roder, the cortege forming at 8:30 at the residence. Burial will be in the parish cemetery. The body may be viewed after 7 o'clock this evening at the

Gets Jail Term

Waupaca — Delbert Buck, 22, is spending 10 days in the county jail for an assault on Clarence Redfield. Arraigned before Justice S. W. Johnson Wednesday morning, Buck pleaded guilty.

The Turkish constitution was adopted in 1925.

Large Crowd Attends Aid Society Meeting

Waupaca — The parlors of the Holy Ghost Lutheran church were filled to capacity Wednesday afternoon for the regular meeting of the Samaritan Ladies Aid society. Mrs. Irving Hanson and Mrs. R. D. Luther were hostesses and a call for contributions of fruit for the Bethany orphanage, resulted in tables heaped with canned fruits and vegetables.

Among the guests were five pastors who had spent the day in consultation on a county Bible camp. After visiting several sites the committee is still undecided. Pastors who were present and had been designated as the committee were the Revs. C. E. Kloth, Milwaukee; J. H. Thomsen, Poy Sippi; Sam Hanson, Waupaca. Members of the 1939 committee also were present and had been invited to sit in on the conference. They were the Rev. A. Aaron Christensen, Hartland, and the Rev. Leo Anderson, Waupaca.

There Are Two Ways to Get at Constipation

Yes, and only two ways—before and after it happens! Instead of enduring those dull, tired, head-ache days and then having to take an emergency cathartic—why not KEEP regular with Kellogg's All-Bran? You can, if your constipation is the kind millions have—due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. For All-Bran goes right to the cause of this trouble by supplying the "bulk" you need. Eat this toasted, nutritious cereal regularly—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if your life isn't a whole lot brighter! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Clapper Sees Crisis in Far East as Serious Business

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—No one should be under any illusions about this far eastern crisis. It is the most serious that has ever strained the relations between the United States and Japan. Tension has passed the point where it may be easily laughed off. The slightest incident might set off an explosion. It is no time for irresponsible words.

This government is moving carefully, but with increasing application of pressure on Japan—pressure still short of war. The pressure is likely to increase, because the government regards this as a critical point that permits of no weakness.

In handling the Japanese crisis, this government is under none of the illusions that the British were under in dealing with Hitler, and with Japan for that matter.

Chamberlain thought, until some time after Munich, that if concessions were made to Hitler he would be reasonable. Chamberlain thought the two systems could live in peace side by side, with Hitler actually holding the fort against the spread of bolshevism into western Europe.

Britain had the same attitude toward Japan. As far back as the early grab at Manchukuo nearly ten years ago, the British thought that the way to peace was to give the aggressors rope and hope that they would either hang themselves or grow fat and lazy. The United States was really in the Manchukuo affair to back up the league of nations on a firm policy. Britain ducked. Many have felt that weakness then gave the tip-off which encouraged other aggressors to reach out.

Only three months ago Britain sought to appease Japan by closing the Burma road and thereby shutting off supplies to China. But Japan only construed that as a sign of weakness and pushed on. During this period Japan has emerged in a military alliance with the axis and she has expanded her public ambitions. A few months ago Japan was promising to observe the status quo in the Dutch East Indies. Now she is out openly to establish the new order over all greater southeastern Asia, taking in everything and threatening war against the United States or any other power that gets in the way.

So, after seeing that her concession only stimulated Japan to be more aggressive, Britain decided to reopen the road.

Government Is Clear On What Is At Stake

We have backed up the British in taking this stand on the Burma road. Simultaneously with Chamberlain's announcement that the road was to be reopened in spite of Japan's opposition, the state department urged Americans to leave those parts of the Far East where the Japanese are operating. This is a what is at stake.

Our officials are thinking always of how the British were pushed back step by step, from one Munich to another. The more they sought to avoid trouble, the more trouble dogged their heels until finally they were forced to turn and defend themselves or be smothered down to the status of helpless second-rate countries.

We are in a somewhat comfortable situation. The threat of Japan is to fence off the Pacific, to throw out her steel wall of ships so that we can trade in the Orient, or use the highways of the Pacific, only by sufferance of Tokyo. The effect would be to leave us free only on this side of the Pacific.

That, roughly summarized is how our government views the situation. How far we are ready to go in dealing with it is an open question. Pending much upon events. Emergency preparations are being made but beyond that it is impossible to speak with certainty, except to say that this government sees clearly what is at stake.

Marie Kohler Invites Women to Aid Willkie

Kohler—(P)—A mass meeting of Wisconsin women supporting the candidacy of Wendell Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee, will be held here next Saturday afternoon.

We expect the women of Wisconsin to come to Kohler next Saturday in a crusading spirit."

Speakers listed include Miss Marion E. Martin, assistant chairman of the Republican national committee and director of the Republican women's division.

"On Hand" in Two Years

Recently the War Department announced the award of contracts for 28 million dollars worth of ammunition from the Ravenna Works in Ohio. Nothing was said in the award about the necessity of the Ravenna Works being first built which will consume a year.

Another award to the tune of 24 millions was published as undertaken by the Charlestown Works in Indiana. But no word was released about the fact that that works is yet to be built, a job that will take a year.

The Radford plant in Virginia was given a job totaling $24,550,000. As yet there is no such plant in existence.

General Motors secured a contract for 61 million dollars worth of machine guns. But General Motors says that the plant for that contract will not be ready to produce for 15 months.

The Savage Arms Company signed up for 27 million dollars in small arms material. But inquiry discloses that it is unprepared to go to work upon this contract until a new extension is built which will require 15 months.

The Chrysler Corporation was given an order for 34 million dollars worth of tanks. But before the order is undertaken the company expects to build a 20 million dollar plant for the purpose and says that 15 months will elapse before the plant is finished.

These facts are cited because of the studied attempt of the administration to mislead the public. All the underlings from cabinet members to janitors took the president's hint when he started to soap the public with "on hand and on order."

It isn't possible to get the truth from Washington unless you cross-examine someone. Words are carefully chosen to deceive. What a magnificent opinion those who perform this work of deception must have of the people they hoodwink.

The Capital Times Throws a Fusee

The Capital Times early in the campaign offered a reward of $500 "to any person who can prove that George Washington ever announced that he was against a third term in the presidency as a matter of principle."

It was an adroit bit of strategy since Washington never made any such specific announcement although his conduct, as well as his written declaration to run a third time, showed very clearly his sober thought and judgment.

But one of the Times' readers claimed the reward. His proof that Washington was against a third term was an editorial article appearing in the Capital Times twelve years ago when Senator LaFollette introduced his famous resolution pointing to the perils of a third term. Then it was that the Times wrote:

"Wisconsin still believes in following the precepts laid down by Washington. Washington said the third term for president would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril."

It is a mirthful situation even if the third term hasn't any mirth about it. The statement made by the Times in 1928 although literally incorrect was arguably true. It is impossible for any writer to hold in mind the separate statements, the great stack of them, made by our presidents and other leading statesmen against destroying this republic either by the cold calculation of ambition or the hot-blooded recklessness of madcap conceit.

The truth is that Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence, also wrote the most biting and damning opinion of any man who would try to get a third term. The warning comes to us across the years, a warning heeded by our fathers as they built this great nation by stone and brick, and discarded by the fluff and flabby weathercock politicians who shudder at the rasping thought of even handling a stone.

It is curious to watch men shamefully abandon principle for the advantages of the moment and try to tell each other that the Commandments chiseled on the mountainside were not meant to be obeyed by fellows who had risen to the stature of gods.

It is an open exposure of the duplicity and hypocrisy that are in men to witness them weep at a banquet as they talk of the magnificent Jefferson and then, about his opinion upon the third term, which he probably treasured as the deathless Declaration of Independence so carefully traced in the long, long ago.

There is a smile to be had from the fact that the Times was hoisted by its own petard but there is no gladness in viewing a great people and a great nation suddenly running madly around like a headless animal, abandoning every safeguard formerly erected, denying every principle formerly fought for, swallowing every decency formerly established and covering over their sad conduct with mouthfuls of frantic words, furiously gurgled forth.

Mr. Kresky Makes a Decision

Nominated for congress on both the Progressive and Democratic tickets at the primary it became necessary under the law for Mr. Kresky to elect which of the two tickets would bear his name. Choice under the circumstances is always a rather difficult matter. Apparently it becomes the duty of the Democratic party committee to fill the vacancy in its lists occasioned by Mr. Kresky's selection of the Progressive banner under which to run. At least that is the way the law runs.

But the odd proposition about our law is that it is what it is. What good reason could the lawmakers have had in mind in preventing a man from standing as the candidate of more than one party if the electors at the primary selected him for that purpose?

It is evident that we are here again wrestling with the question of majority rule, a very important consideration in our government. It is to be observed that many states have contrary rules to ours. We have just witnessed Senator Hiram Johnson nominated by the three political parties in California. But that is not necessary in order to maintain majority rule.

We hesitate to mention majority rule because it is merely a principle, and the zealots in power are smashing principles in our government as effectively as Doc Goebbels' coterie have been smashing them in central Europe.

But if, perchance, some day and before all is lost, we return to the sound anchorage of proven principles in government we will wipe out of our primary law the provision that made Mr. Kresky choose between the Democrats and Progressives while there was still a candidate for the Republicans.

We do not think the people should favor a law permitting a man to stand as a candidate for all the parties because opposition at the election is to our democracy what the cold current of a swift stream is to the trout, the great invigorator.

With those extremely rare exceptions where something dumbfounding concerning the candidate has occurred after the primary we should studiously aim in electing one man against another at an election, two in all, instead of dividing strength and responsibility as have the democracies that fell.

A Prosecutor's Achievements

Although the conviction of a long list of corruptionists headed by Mr. Hines is supposed to be a great feather in the cap of Tom Dewey it is likely that the public will never appreciate the razor keenness and the Toledo steel flexibility of mind necessary to obtain the slashing, crashing victories that have been secured by this brilliant prosecutor against wealth, political influence, and all the sordid perjuries of the underworld.

Hines, whose sentence to eight years was unanimously upheld by the Court of Appeals recently, was the political protector of Dutch Schultz, leading gangster, and his organization that grossed an estimated 20 million a year in New York City.

It should be remembered that Mr. Dewey's Himalayan climb received its greatest setback from a "liberal" judge who declared a mistrial after weeks of evidence upon a technicality so technical that it never cast a shadow.

But a prosecutor with such a record of accomplishment finds that the underworld loses all assistance when it is finally convinced that it cannot buy or influence his actions. As soon as Mr. Dewey now starts out to investigate any particular racket or criminal organization, it seems to disintegrate before his eyes as the various members rush to his office to give evidence on others.

We are prone in this country to look upon Mr. Dewey's record as a rare thing in our lives, a unique and unexpected accomplishment. But if the people would use the gray matter that heaven has placed at some point above their ears, in constantly selecting capable and courageous men to the pivotal position of prosecutor, they wouldn't be so surprised at getting good results.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

SUNSET ROAD

When we had traveled the whole glad way,
We looked back,
Sunset had loosened a golden ray
On the track.
The road was lovelier than we dreamed.
Into the fields of the past it gleamed.

You and I, facing the twilight years,
We have walked closely through smiles and tears,
Hand in hand,
Sunset behind us is not too far,
And surely our future holds a star!

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—Big business members of the Commerce Department's Business Advisory Board got the surprise of their lives at the banquet they gave to new Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones.

The towering, multi-millionaire Texan, has not been noted for his New Dealism. As RFC boss, sometimes he bluntly opposed the White House, and his elevation to the cabinet met with dour mutters in certain inner administration quarters.

So when Jones rose to address his business hosts, they leaned back in comfortable anticipation of soothing remarks. A few minutes later they were sitting bolt upright in startled astonishment.

"These United States," said the new Secretary of Commerce, "have been good to us. We have made money, we have nice homes, we wear good clothes, have fine cars and can afford banquets like this one. We can look back fifty years, when most of us started, and chart the courses we followed. But we can't look ahead that far and see where we are going."

"But there are some things we do know about the future. One of them is that the days of making great fortunes are over. That is finished. Another is that the upper third, you and I, has got to have a more public-minded viewpoint. We must realize that the welfare and well-being of the lower third is our problem. We are not living in a world by ourselves. We are as much a part of society as the fellow on the other side of the tracks."

"His problems are our problems and unless something is done about them, the world we know and want to preserve won't last very long. We business men can't afford to be blind, or obstructive, or stupid. You can't turn the clock back. Remember that."

Equally unexpected was the reaction to the Jones talk. His business hosts applauded vigorously.

Note—Lone guest not in dinner clothes was Averill Harriman, director of numerous corporations and railroads and former head of the advisory board. Harriman's old friend Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman joshingly started a subscription fund to buy him a dinner jacket.

ARMY UNIFORMS
Young men who want to be officers in the new army are finding that the greatest obstacle is the cost of getting dressed. The army does not provide uniforms for its officers, and the cost at a tailor shop is enough to send them back home as conscientious objectors.

For an officer called in from Reserve, here is the list of minimum requirements. It does not include the "special evening dress," which would add another $105 to the total.

Olive drab blouse (coat)	$60.00
Overcoat	58.00
Garrison cap	8.50
Campaign cap	3.00
Sam Browne belt	10.50
Pajamas	10.50
Field boots	18.50
Six shirts at $3.00	18.00
Breeches	25.00
Total	$212.00

This also does not include a $16 sabre, which has now been made optional. And it includes only one suit of blouse-and-slacks, whereas three or four actually are required.

The Quartermaster Corps of the army estimates that $250 would be required to purchase a "modest outfit" for a young officer.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER, serving on the National Defense commission, has been described as a "dollar-a-year man." "But," complained the young millionaire, "I don't even get the dollar."

WILLKIE AND LABOR
From the start of his campaign in the Chicago stockyards, Wendell Willkie has plugged tenaciously away at woeing labor. It has been a hard, uphill fight.

But the gritty GOP standard bearer has stuck doggedly to it and has gone out of his way everywhere to sell himself to the workman. Just how tough a proposition this is, is illustrated by the following incidents:

1. In Lansing, Mich., the Oldsmobile auto management asked the shop committee if it would be all right to close down for an hour, so that Willkie could visit the plant to talk to the workers. The answer of the shop committee was that the union had no objection—provided the company paid the men for the time they listened to the candidate.

The company refused, and the proposed meeting was canceled.

2. Husky, white-haired Charles MacGowan, vice president of the AFL Boilermakers and Shipbuilders Union, is a lifelong Republican and personal friend of Willkie's. Several years ago, at a conference with MacGowan in the New York offices of the Commonwealth & Southern Corp., Willkie instructed an assistant:

"I want you to see to it that hereafter no supplies are bought from any concern that doesn't play ball with the boilermakers' union. These boys are our friends."

MacGowan relates this incident proudly. But when the GOP National committee asked MacGowan for an endorsement of Willkie, MacGowan replied with a polite but firm "no."

"I'm sorry to have to do this," he explained, "for I have a deep affection for Wendell Willkie. He's one of the greatest guys I know and our relations on labor matters always have been good. But I've got to think about my own people first."

"I guess I would have been in there pitching for Willkie if he had showed labor he had more to offer than the New Deal. He hasn't done that. He has made a lot of promises about putting people back to work, but he hasn't told how he would do it. Promises aren't enough. So I'm casting my lot with Roosevelt."

MERRY GO ROUND
After watching a senate session from the galleries, Dr. Anthony Sindoni, Jr., head of Philadelphia General Hospital, said, "Most of them seem to be suffering from metabolic disturbances."

Secretary Hull was asked a question about Thailand. When he answered, the word Thailand stuck in his throat, and he said, "I can't get over calling it Siam."

Who Can Keep Us Out of War?
Editor Post-Crescent—Ordinarily, when presidential election years come around, the two major political parties have presented the people with definite and clear-cut issues upon which they differed.

At the time of Lincoln it was the slavery question, at the time of Jackson it was the bank question, at the time of William Jennings Bryan it was the question of free coinage of silver, and in 1932 the issue that the American people decided was a continuation of the new deal philosophy of government.

But even the most intelligent voter will have a job deciding what the issues are today. While the President's cohorts are calling Mr. Willkie grossly ignorant of the history of the past few years, Mr. Willkie blames Franklin D. for contributing to the downfall of democracy in Europe. Mr. Willkie does not hesitate, on the other hand, to tell us that this country is on the way to bankruptcy because of F. D. R.'s spending, but turns right around and says that if he is elected he will make America so strong that the dictators will think twice before attacking us. Just how he proposes to spend more than F. D. R. and not get us bankrupt, he keeps a dark secret.

But like Norman Thomas said, both major political party candidates are befuddling the big issue of the day. And to every American the big issue is the question of getting into somebody else's war. Make no mistake about it, all these steps "short of war" cannot lead anywhere except to war. Mr. Willkie blames FDR for taking these steps, because it will mean more votes for him, but then turns right around and advocates all the aid we can possibly give to dear old England. If that isn't insulting a man's intelligence, I'd like to know what is.

At least when a customer goes to the store to buy something, he can have a choice in the matter. If he doesn't like one color suit, he can have another. If he isn't satisfied with one brand he can buy another. But when the voter goes to the polls this November, he will have no real choice of men in electing an occupant of the White House, for on the all important and burning question of foreign policy, both men are brewmasters in one and the same political brewing house.

As we hear more and more talk about union with England, and taking Australia under our wing, and sending our navy over there to "protect" it, we are convinced that the men at the head of our national government are more pro-English than a good many citizens wish they were.

We know what a pro-English American government did to this country once. It robbed her of its youth in a war we all regret having entered, caused a false period of prosperity with an ensuing depression, and made a handful of millionaires in the blood industries built upon human misery and destruction.

Now would be a good time for Americans to bestir themselves to a little sound thinking, before it's too late.

America needs a pacifist for President, a man who isn't aligned with either party, and someone who believes in keeping our national nose out of someone else's business, and someone who believes in keeping neutral in act as well as in spirit, at the same time rearming ourselves to the teeth, as a deterrent to any would-be conqueror.

Such a man, who would do a good job for the American people, would in my opinion, be a man like Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. He has shown singular courage to us all, and there isn't an American among us who hasn't a deep-rooted feeling of respect for our "Lindy." He came up from the masses to a name and fame, and yet he has been able to remain his own humble self. Having once been a nobody himself, he thought and understood as other millions of obscure Americans thought and understood. That is why his radio speeches expressed the same feeling that echoed in the hearts of almost every one except a few New Deal Senators.

I think that the great bulk of our people would really enjoy voting, once in their lives, for someone who was not hatched by a party convention. In a world wherein the common people are looking at all politicians with growing mistrust, I am sure they would be willing to follow the leadership of a man such as he, who understands as we do, the real issue of this campaign.

Of course Lindbergh hasn't a ghost of a chance of being our next President, unless the leading newspapers of the nation should all start a campaign for him, but it just goes to prove what the people are capable of if enough of them get mad about the same thing at the same time.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—So far apart are the respective campaign claims of the Republicans and Progressives in this campaign, so positive, bold are the denials of each of the veracity of the other, that the bewildered voter is likely to wonder before long, after listening to both sides, if they are not trying to outdo each other in distributing falsehoods.

Republicans claim to have reduced state payroll expenditures. Progressives scornfully reply that Heil has more people working for him than LaFollette ever did.

Progressives accuse the Republicans of trying to eliminate the oleo tax, thus attempting to infatuate the farmers to their advantage. Republicans say they have reinstated economy in state government. Progressives maintain that the Heil regime will spend more money than any other.

Republicans boast that they have increased social security aids. Progressives retort that the average pension today is no higher than in the previous administration, and that it will probably be cut before long.

THE ANSWER
Now the average voting citizen, interested in the facts and accustomed to calling a spade a spade is likely to become impatient with such goings on and to dismiss the respective campaigners as men who are deliberately trifling with the truth to befuddle him.

Yet according to their lights, the Republicans and Progressives probably feel themselves justified in saying what they do, and it is all in the established style of politics. It is probably true of course, that some of the run of the mill campaigners don't know any better, but the artful propagandists at each party headquarters are furnishing the ammunition with the conviction that it's fair and essentially honest.

REASONS
Basic reason for the seeming incompatibility of the opposing campaign arguments is the fact that they are all generalizations. There are no explicit, detailed explanations.

Thus, for example, it is true that Heil reduced some taxes. But it is also true that he raised some others. It is true that Heil is spending more money than his predecessors did for old age pensions. But it is also true that average benefits have not gone up—because the total caseload has increased during his term to absorb the extra appropriations.

It is true that the Heil budget is the highest in state history, but it is also true that his administration has cut operating expenses until it hurt—hurt so much that the wounds have not healed to this day. The governor will have to contend with the fact at the ballot box that a lot of Madison folks don't approve of his budget cutting.

It was predicted in this space many months ago that the 1940 campaign would be paradoxical, viewed from the campaign arguments of the two parties. It is certainly that.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

ALLERGY OR SINUSITIS?

Sometimes I wonder if any of our old readers who used to get so mad when I asserted there is no such disease as "rheumatism" are still alive and still suffering with rheumatism.

I know a great many readers have "touches" of neuritis, for they tell me so, but that's all I know about it. Sometimes, tho, I wonder whether what ails them isn't—now, please don't boo—simply prolonged moderate deficiency in vitamin B complex intake.

Nowadays I have something else to wonder about. I wonder whether a great deal of bitter controversy could not have been avoided these ten or twenty years had both sides had a better understanding of allergy. I mean the controversy over "itching cold." It is now pretty well recognized by physicians who are abreast of progress that a large percentage of alleged "colds" that come on and clear off rather abruptly are in fact manifestations of allergy, and neither infectious nor in any way related to cold, exposure, weather, dampness or draft.

I have a monograph "Relief for Allergy," available on request if you enclose stamped envelope bearing your address. Allergic manifestations vary greatly in different individuals—for hives or eczema in one to asthma or furious watering at the nose and machine gun sneezing in another.

Why some individuals suffer from these or other manifestations of allergy and others do not, is a mystery as yet. Indeed we do not know why allergic sensitivity to an identical substance, say egg white or weather dust or orris root (in cosmetic powder) causes an eczematous outbreak in one individual, coryza in another, asthmatic attack in still another.

Now many nose and throat specialists believe many cases of sinus trouble are not of infectious (germ) origin but purely allergic in character. They maintain that failure to recognize the allergic factor in such cases is the reason why much sinus surgery fails to bring the anticipated relief.

Frankly, I am singing in the dark or in dim light on this subject, but I do not suffer from night-blindness, thanks to my optimal daily intake of vitamin A—a capsule or two (25,000 or 50,000 units) of natural A at breakfast every morning. I have been impressed by the large number of correspondents reporting extraordinary relief to chronic sinus trouble from high calcium diet and calcium feeding (send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph "The Calcium Story").

I have been impressed also by the large number of correspondents reporting symptomatic relief from the use of soluble potassium chloride as instructed in the Allergy monograph above mentioned.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Vitamin Units
The different classifications of vitamin units are confusing to one advised to take so many units of a given vitamin. Sometimes international units, sometimes U.S.P. and sometimes still other standards are specified. Please give the equivalents of these different units. (Puzzled.)

Answer—The whole business is confused, thanks to the present attempt to establish some universal standard such as the international unit. Until this is effected it will be impossible to specify precisely what the equivalents are.

Paranoia
Please explain what paranoia is and tell whether it can be inherited and whether a person afflicted with it can fully recover. (A. T. V.)
Answer—Insanity characterized by systematized delusions without other signs of mental derangement. It begins in early adult life, usually in a person with neuropathic hereditary taint (that is, parent or other forebear has contributed defective material, damaged protoplasm, as from alcoholism, feeble-mindedness, epilepsy, drug habit, moral depravity, syphilis). Outlook for complete recovery is bad, but some paranoids live fairly normal lives and only their intimate acquaintances are aware of their delusions.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Oct. 8, 1930
A large and persistent stream of liquidation swept through the stock market that day, swelled by announcement of the suspension from stock exchange of Prince and Whitley, one of the oldest and one of the larger Wall street brokerage firms.

Wisconsin avenue property owners voted 37 to 7 in favor of placing the district from Richmond street to Meade street in the local business district at an informal meeting conducted by the ordinance committee at Roosevelt Junior High school that week.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Oct. 14, 1915
A proposition to require all publishers to wrap newspapers and circulars in an individual wrapper presented by Matt Stapleton of Rhinelander, was considered at the state meeting of postmasters held in Appleton the previous day, but the consensus of opinion was that the idea was not practical from a standpoint of efficiency.

For the second time in a little more than a month a Zeppelin squadron threw bombs into the heart of London. Eight persons were killed and 34 injured. Material damage was small. Martial law had been proclaimed in The Hague. Seventeen German ore steamers which piled the Baltic sea were reported missing and were believed to have been sunk by British submarines.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

Both sides claim a victory in that court decision in the Ford case, which makes it just about the most novel decision of the year. But the national labor relations board is found wrong again, and this time on a pretty vital issue to all Americans.

The board had held that a pamphlet issued by Henry in a labor row was "coercion," although there was nothing coercive in the statement which just put forth Henry's views. The court throws this opinion into the ash can. Free speech belongs to the boss as well as the hired man, the court ruled, and the right is of no value to the boss if he can't express it.

The NLRB ruling had the employers too scared to put anything in print. A factory pamphlet containing a copy of "The Village Blacksmith" and emphasizing that stuff about toil from morn to night might be held coercive and unfair to labor, for all they could tell.

The NLRB seemed to hold that pamphlet was only okay if the workers got it out, and I don't think even the workers subscribed to that notion.

Such NLRB rulings tend to "whittle away basic constitutional rights" the court remarks. Whittle ain't the word for it. It's been a buzz saw project.

Cathedral Is Hit by Bombs In Nazi Raid

penetrating the city's inner defenses and looting a rain of incendiary and high explosive bombs which made the raid one of the worst the capital has experienced. More than 50 districts of the battered city were hit, but the government said first reports indicated the cathedral would be spared. Heavy rain also was reported against Wales and southwestern England but they did not compare in violence with the smashing attack on London.

Most of the damage in London was inflicted overnight. A famous church, one of the city's oldest, a promenade known as the world over, hospitals and several international known buildings were struck.

2 Lulls in Attack
The government said fires in the city and in suburban areas were promptly dealt with and all were brought under control. At several points houses were hit and some industrial premises were damaged.

There were two lulls in the attack during the early morning but each time the Nazi raiders roared back to drop more bombs. Finally just as dawn began to streak the sky the invaders headed for home pursued by anti-aircraft fire.

In one London district during the early part of the night the air forces gave a display of accuracy by knocking down nine of 11 flares dropped by the Nazis.

Increasing the scope of its counter blows to include daylight as well as night attacks, Britain's air force today reported raids deep into Germany and occupied areas, and new setbacks to the functioning of the German war machine.

The air ministry said the British successes included hits last night on "enemy" destroyers moored at Brest, important French port out of the tip of Brittany.

Krupp Works Bombed

Again reported bombed were the big Krupp munitions works at Essen, an oil plant at Cologne, and sundry factories, supply depots, railway yards, barge concentrations and shipping.

(Berlin declared that little damage was done by British raiders last night and that some were forced to turn back from western Germany.)

(A German wireless report received in New York said incendiary "leaves" six times larger than those formerly used, were thrown on districts outside Cologne. This report said two civilians were killed, workmen's houses destroyed and damaged and two churchyards hit near Cologne.)

In one daylight raid, said the air ministry news service, railway sidings 50 miles east of Munster were hit by bombs that "burst clean across the tracks."

The news service said one bomber pilot flying very low over Holland noted several civilians waving at him.

"A couple of men chatting in a country road apparently started this popular movement and for 50 miles as we flew across the fields men and women stopped working to wave their handkerchiefs."

quired by the Wisconsin and U. S. constitutions," Thomas P. Maroney, Milwaukee, counsel for Balzer, told the court.

"The framers of our constitution looked forward to the day when insincere men would run for office," Maroney said. "They meant to save democracy. That is why they required the oath as a qualification for office. They didn't mean that a candidate could campaign to overthrow his government and then if elected, later say that he was sincere in taking the oath."

Rector argued the constitutional requirement on taking the oath applied not to candidates but to duly elected officials just before they assumed office.

He said the state supreme court already had decided that if a person could qualify for office at the time his term began he could qualify at the time he could qualify at the time of the election. The Communist and Labor party filed a motion for a writ of habeas corpus to require the state to allow the Communist party to run for office.

Candidate against whom Balzer's petition was directed was Earl Browder, president of the Communist party, for vice president, Ted F. F. Ford, for United States senator and Blair for governor. They filed for the independent column since the Communist party has no legal standing.

Reporter 'Bombed Out of Bed' In Attack on Apartment House

BY ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

London.—Reichsmarshal Goebbels' Luftwaffe bombed me right out of bed this morning with a hit on one of London's largest apartment buildings.

Three bombs formed a triangle around my rooftop flat. One blasted a hole in a row of houses across the alley from my bedroom window.

A second struck the main entrance smashing the lobby. The third landed at the nearest street corner, setting fire to a shattered gas main. The fire shot skyward like a burning gas well. It is still burning as I send this.

I had just returned home from the office last night after a nightmare mile walk and a two-mile taxi ride through glass-strewn streets with bombs dropping on all sides and shells bursting in the sky.

I met Mrs. Bunnele in the lounge and we decided to retire as things seemed to be calming down.

The apartment porter joked about my night from the office, during which I was forced to seek shelter three times, and laughed, "all you need to make the night complete is a hit here."

The next time I saw him in the wrecked lobby he was wrapped in bandages.

"I was just dazing when 'my' bombs fell. Mrs. Bunnele and I were awakened by the scream of a bomb and then an explosion rocked the building. Glass and masonry were still clattering down when two more bombs hit almost simultaneously.

For a moment I thought the building was going to collapse. I remember thinking hazily.

"Well, if it falls, maybe this bed will soften the bump."

My wife and I slipped into a few clothes and scurried to the stairway. The corridor was filled with smoke, but we dashed through it to get to the ground floor.

Several tenants who had been in the basement shelter rushed upstairs and our taxi wardens were trying to shoot them back, for fire made the building stand out like a battleship on the Sahara and the raiders were still above us.

Everyone was choking with smoke and groping around in broken glass and fallen plaster. Several wardens were hit by glass but most escaped serious injury.

We could scarcely walk in the lobby because of the heaps of glass and plaster there. The brick wall at the building's entrance was demolished. We entered the shelter.

Most of our neighbors treated their predicament as a joke. Each one tried to tell the other his experiences, but it took a pretty good story to stop anybody.

Daylight came half an hour after the bombs struck our apartment and as soon as the all-clear sounded everyone surged into the streets to see the damage. It wasn't a pretty sight.

I walked a couple of blocks before finding a telephone that would work and called the Associated Press office and then returned to the apartment to catch a couple of hours sleep before I was due back at work again.

yesterday with Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, their second in three days.

Official quarters maintained rigid silence. The lone authoritative comment was, "the conversations were not confined to any single issue."

Observers expressed belief that a powerful effort was being made to ease the strain and deflect any acute crisis.

Grew also conferred for an hour with Chuchi Onishi, vice minister of foreign affairs.

Yakuchiro Suna, foreign office spokesman, said both meetings resulted from a foreign office invitation. The spokesman declined to reveal the subject of the discussions but said it was "not startling."

The majority of the Americans here accepted calmly the official United States advice to leave the Orient.

Families of members of the embassy staff and of naval officers were expected to remain.

Steamship companies reported little immediate effect from the advice to leave. The President lines said they were tentatively booked through March, largely by European refugees, many of whom would be unable to sail because of visa difficulties.

Canadian Pacific said few attempts had been made today for new bookings. It was reported that cabins were available on one vessel sailing Oct. 29 for New York.

Some missionaries planned to leave because of recent anti-foreign agitation. Business men expected to stay, except for a few whose businesses were eliminated by Japanese anti-luxury laws which became effective Monday.

Closed for Holiday
City hall will be closed Saturday in observance of Columbus day, according to Mayor John Goodland, Jr. The office of the Wisconsin State Employment Service also will be closed.

County Pension Costs Increase

Pension costs in Outagamie county in September amounted to $30,275.25, an increase of about $250 over the preceding month, according to a report of T. S. Davis, county pension director.

Payment to the aged amounted to $18,522.90, an increase of $82.90. There were 892 active cases during the month, 6 being added and 6 being dropped.

Department children's aid totaled $10,495.85, an increase of $242.10. During the month 327 cases were cared for, 5 cases being added and 4 being dropped.

Fifty-nine blind cases were given aid amounting to $1,286.50, a decrease of $75.50.

Lecture Series on Navigation Will Start at Neenah Tuesday

Boatmen and even those who don't own boats, will be given an opportunity to learn more about the science of navigation in a series of eight lectures the first of which will be offered Tuesday evening at the Neenah city hall.

Jim Kimberly, Neenah, will give the first talk of the series which will be sponsored by the United States Power Squadrons, a unit of which was formed in this area last year.

A G. Wakeman, Appleton, is commander of the organization; Jim Kimberly, Neenah, and C. A. Fourness, Appleton, are lieutenant commanders; and Andrew Liethen, Appleton, is secretary and treasurer. The local unit is called the Winnebago Power Squadron.

Wakeman emphasized that the lectures are open to anyone interested. He said examinations will be given to those attending the lectures at the close of the series. Those who pass the tests will become members of the Winnebago unit.

26 Years Old
The first power squadron, Wakeman, said, was organized in February, 1914, over 26 years ago, by a small group of public-spirited yachtsmen. It has developed into a nation-wide agency for the teaching and dissemination of safe, sound, sensible principles of boat handling and navigation.

Wakeman said that 26 years ago the threat of war was responsible for the inception of the organization. Today it is securely established and prepared to cope with the new problems for national defense. Its members now number about 7,000 affiliated with 66 local units. The organization is strictly a volunteer organization and the instruction it offers is free.

The scope of the series of lectures will be broad and embraces discussions of equipment, numbering, documenting, lights, rules of the road, whistle signals, seamanship, nautical terminology, anchoring, boat handling, and use of the lead.

Later Lectures
Later the lectures will go into safety at sea, emergencies, safety in fog, man overboard drill, fire prevention and control, knots and splices. The mariner's compass and its use will be explained in detail. All types and aids to navigation will be covered, including light-

Digs Up Coins but Other Workmen Get There First

Ogden, Utah.—(AP)—Kenneth Wheelwright's power shovel came up dripping silver dollars.

Workmen scrambled for the coins, so Wheelwright pocketed only seven of an estimated fifty.

The money was believed to have been buried under an old house razed several years ago.

Mere Laxatives Often Not Enough

In these days of worry, nervous strain and faulty habits, it's no wonder the stomach sometimes gets overworked and clogged bowels often "cry out" for help. More than just a laxative is often needed. When you feel nervous, sickly and played-out, what you may need is to wake up both the stomach and bowels in their digestive and eliminative functions. You can do it without drastic drugs. Defense Bungled By New Dealers, Lawrence States

Claims Reason Is Sheer Inefficiency
And Incompetence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The Roosevelt administration has made a colossal failure of the defense program thus far, and everybody knows it except the American people because the politicians, who are in the midst of a third term campaign, are anxious to gloss over the truth.

But official facts will come out. They do not emanate from the propaganda bureaus in Washington so skillfully controlled by the New Deal politicians, but from a public speech just delivered before the Army Ordnance association by William Knudsen of the National Defense Advisory commission.

"The picture is something like this," he said. "We are scheduled to turn out 1,133 planes in October. I think we will get around 900 to 950."

This is the first revelation of the president's failure, but it emphasizes how far wrong Mr. Roosevelt went when he told the American people in a formal message to congress last May that American airplane capacity, which had been about 6,000 planes per year, was very soon to be doubled so it would be 12,000 during this year. The Knudsen figures show not only that airplane production is behind schedule, but that the president's prediction to congress will not be fulfilled till January next.

The revised figures now predict 3,000 per month by the spring of 1942. With Germany producing at least 2,500 planes per month, and with America able to produce 5,000 per month if the men who know production could only have full authority, the tragic fact is that the New Deal, despite its best intentions and patriotic endeavors, has sabotaged its own defense program.

Inefficiency

The reason for this is sheer inefficiency and incompetence in Washington as well as political selfishness. The New Dealers do not want to surrender any power to the business men and the president backs up his radical advisers—hence production lags.

Mr. Roosevelt is being praised by his supporters as a man of great "experience" who ought to be retained in office because he knows so much about "foreign affairs." What is needed today however is not a knowledge of diplomatic intrigues of Europe, but a knowledge of domestic affairs—production and industrial organization.

In that field the president is floundering hopelessly and if the nazis were today bombarding American cities, the indignation of the American people over the shameful neglect of our defenses would know no bounds. Their indignation a year hence will be intense when they find that even a simple schedule of airplane production projected since last May has not been met. But it will do no good to be indignant a year from now if the people have bound themselves for four years to a third-term president who cannot be removed till 1944.

Mr. Roosevelt has had his chance to organize the national defense since Holland and Belgium were invaded last May and has signally failed. He is not temperamentally suited to organize things that involve business and industrial processes, and while he does summon to Washington business and industrial executives he makes them office boys for the New Dealers and they cannot do anything about the hamstringing radical experiments being conducted by those same New Dealers. Mr. Roosevelt has unfortunately worried about the CIO vote all summer, and the defense program has suffered.

Patience Strained

Mr. Knudsen's patience has been strained to the breaking point. He said in his New York speech, for instance, that New Dealer Robert Jackson, who holds the important office of attorney general, had made a mistake in insisting that defense contracts must be tied up to labor board rulings.

"I think that's going too far," said Mr. Knudsen. "Certainly the defense commission has no authority and does not want to undertake the job of enforcing the labor laws."

This is but one instance of the demoralization that has enveloped the defense program. A discredited labor board seems more important to the administration than defense. The truth is that New Dealism and the organization of America for national defense do not mix. The American people in the coming election will have to take their choice, and if they pick New Dealism, then the boys registering on Oct. 16 for the draft are much more likely to be dragged into overseas wars than if the people vote to put in charge a man who has the confidence of engineers, executives and businessmen from one end of the country to the other. Even the conservative leaders of organized labor realize Wendell Willkie is a square shooter, and know they can get a square deal.

What America needs today is some one who can bring her unity, and this will never come while the political clique which pulls the wool over Mr. Roosevelt's eyes remains in power. A house-cleaning in Washington would do more to compel respect for America's potential might in a military and naval sense than all the diplomatic bluff and tricky diplomacy which at the moment seem to be the main weapons of our woefully unprepared country.

Committee to Meet

The agricultural and fire prevention committee of the county board will meet Friday morning at the courthouse. Fire prevention equipment in the county will be checked.

Gallup Wrong On Wisconsin, Martin Believes

Post-Crescent Washington bureau Washington — Although the Gallup poll early this week gave Roosevelt the lead over Willkie in the presidential race in Wisconsin, Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., Republican national committee chairman discounts the report.

"Mr. Gallup hasn't gone deep enough in Wisconsin," he says. "Four other polls say Willkie is in the lead there."

Chairman Martin is having polls of public opinion made in various areas, himself, to determine Willkie's prospects. "Wisconsin is so safe I am not going to have a poll made out there," he declares, however.

He believes that a widespread "trend" for Willkie began about 12 days ago throughout the country. He explains this largely on the grounds that "third-term candidacy is one of the biggest issues" and that "many people feel Roosevelt is going to put us into war."

Public opinion polls don't give a complete picture, Martin says, because "a great many people are reluctant to talk publicly." Many government workers and business men prefer to remain non-committal regarding voting intentions, he asserts.

Public opinion polls don't give a complete picture, Martin says, because "a great many people are reluctant to talk publicly." Many government workers and business men prefer to remain non-committal regarding voting intentions, he asserts.

He believes that a widespread "trend" for Willkie began about 12 days ago throughout the country. He explains this largely on the grounds that "third-term candidacy is one of the biggest issues" and that "many people feel Roosevelt is going to put us into war."

Federal Court Docket Clear

Eastern District of Wisconsin Given Favorable Report

Washington—The administrative office of United States courts reported today that the eastern district of Wisconsin's federal court was clear of congestion.

The annual report of Henry T. Chandler, director of the office, which was submitted to Chief Justice Hughes and other members of the judicial conference covered the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940.

The administrative office was created by congress in 1939 and its chief purpose was to make recommendations for more speedy and effective disposition of court business.

While the number of civil cases filed in Wisconsin's eastern district during the year somewhat exceeded the number terminated, Chandler reported:

"There were on June 30, twenty-two pending cases at issue more than six months which, it was reported, the court had been unable to reach for trial because of other business."

"However, an inspection of the docket of this court shows that in most of these cases the parties were not ready to proceed at the January, 1940, term of court."

The report also said that Wisconsin's eastern and western districts combined won convictions in 133 out of 272 criminal cases handled and that 20 other defendants were found guilty in part. Three defendants were acquitted and the other cases dismissed.

In nearby states the report showed Michigan handled 335 criminal cases during the fiscal year. Of these 649 were found guilty as charged and 56 guilty in part.

Disabled Persons Receiving Instruction in New Program

A program of instruction for disabled persons who are unfit for regular employment is being sponsored in Outagamie county at the request of the county unit of the Wisconsin Association for the Disabled.

Operated under the auspices of the Appleton Vocational school, the program will be in the nature of a 2-year experiment in this county, one of 12 in the state in which it is being tested.

Miss Marjorie Kircher, Wauwatosa, a graduate of the Milwaukee State Teachers college, has been employed as instructor. She will visit disabled people at their homes, teaching them such subjects as needlecraft, leather-work, hand woodwork and carving, metalwork, ceramics, weaving, and other occupations. The articles made by the disabled persons will be sold.

The program is federal-state aided. One half of the cost is borne by the federal government, one quarter by the state and one-quarter by the locality.

The county unit of the Wisconsin Association for The Disabled, sponsor of the project, is providing the supplies and equipment. Officers of the unit are Mrs. Harold Miller, president; Joseph Doerflinger, vice president; Mrs. Clarence Baetz, treasurer; and Carl Bertram, secretary.

Miss Kircher, the instructor, will visit each disabled person working under the program at least one hour a week.

Biography of Diplomat Is Among New Books at Library

New London—The biography of Lloyd C. Griscom, whose life story reads like an adventure, is among the new books at the New London Public Library this week under the title, "Diplomatically Speaking." At twenty, Griscom was secretary to the United States ambassador at London, and later at Constantinople, Japan and elsewhere, excitement followed him.

In "The March of the Barbarians," Harold Lamb, a master of Oriental history and romance, has presented the dramatic epic of a mighty race.

New London to Play Neenah in Conference Tilt

Coach Charlesworth Shifts Lineup for Grid Battle Saturday

New London—The New London High school football squad is getting a rigorous shake-up this week as Coach G. M. Charlesworth prepares to meet Neenah on the latter's field Saturday afternoon in the second conference contest of the season.

The 12 to 7 defeat by St. Mary's at Menasha last week showed up a lot of defects that the New London mentor means to correct.

The new quarter-back will be Bob Seering, who will be calling signals hereafter.

Bernard Freiburger apparently earned a steady job at full back. John Sullivan getting his former post at right end. The first string backfield then, probably will be Freiburger, Seering, Pines and Le-on Bodoh with George Webber, Eddie Huettner, Jim Bodoh and Ray Much for replacements.

Schlimke Back in Line
Les Schlimke is definitely back in the line at guard although he is still suffering from an ankle injury. From his work against St. Mary's, Dick Demming probably will rate first call at guard against Neenah, with Lewis Bellie and Alden Smith tuss-ups for the other.

Bert Saterstrom's place at tackle will be open to Richard Otis who showed possibilities at Menasha. Ted Roberts is another novice in the ranks who is coming up fast and may take a regular post along with Richard McDaniel. Charles Clark will continue his good work at left end.

Workouts this week are being devoted almost exclusively and intensively, to blocking. Pass defense also will be brushed up.

The same squad that went to Menasha last week will go to Neenah this week but there will be a different team on the field. The game is scheduled for 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the Neenah High school athletic field.

Little Change in Relief Cost
Five Local Cases are Dropped, 2 Transients Added in September

New London—With total expenditures of $2,141 in September, relief costs in New London varied little from the month of August, according to the monthly report of the relief department.

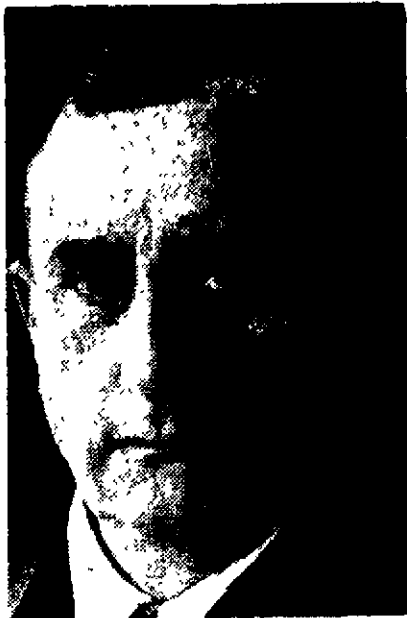

Local cases decreased five and transient cases increased two, local costs dropped $235 and transient costs rose $167, the increase due mostly to hospital and medical care. The cost of groceries to local cases fell off $200 while a slight decrease in medical costs was offset by two cases receiving aid out of the city.

The itemized expenditures for September, local and transient, respectively, were as follows: Groceries, $223.34; $165.22; clothing, $18.62; $15.80; fuel, $133.62; $31.68; rent, $210.50; medical care, $193.17; $95.50; hospitalization, $79.10; $68.20; household help and nursing, $2.53; room and board, $53.50; transient only; ambulance service, $10 local, Lincoln county, one local case, $24; city of Appleton, one local case, $42.02; miscellaneous, $6.81; transient, local work relief, $32; totals, $1,567.70 local, $574.14 transient; grand total, $2,141.84. Local cases 70, transient 22.

Luft High in Plywood Loop

New London—Alex Luft pounded a new high game mark in the Plywood league at Frahl's alley, last night when he crashed the maples for 230. He totaled a 521 series to lead his Yanks in two victories over Wally's Bees. Hank's Dodgers tied the Yanks for first by trimming Roepke's Cubs three games. Hank Bettsette paced his winners with a 203 line and 487 total.

Young People's League
Arnold Prahl annexed both individual marks when he scored a 181 line in the Emanuel Young People's circuit. Pegler Doesn't Hesitate to Criticize Women Politicians

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—It appears that we are about to observe an attack on Wendell Willkie as an enemy of American womanhood because he adverted to the notorious incompetence and general unfitness of the deplorable Mme. Perkins for the position of secretary of labor and went so far as to say that hers was a job for a man. I do not know how much further Mr. Willkie will have the candor and audacity to go in this direction, but if he will slip me the ball I will carry it for a long gain, because the professional politician ranks high in the list of American abominations and is a pernicious nuisance who has imposed on the natural chivalry of the race to escape the criticism which she deserves.

A candidate for the presidency will be unfairly shackled in any attempt to do justice to this theme, for the female of the species does not submit to judgment on her merits as a public official but instinctively raises the equivalent of the old cry which has touched off so many deep south lynchings.

The truth is that, after all these years and after all the suffragette propaganda, which most of us remember only dimly now, women in politics and office have contributed nothing to the political morality of the nation or its subdivisions. They have been just so many more sordid and selfish Democrats and Republicans—no worse, on the average, than the males but certainly no better. They have failed to live up to their early billing as a purifying moral force who would pretty up politics by hanging chintz in the polling places and substituting hand-painted gobboons for tawdry papier mache and enamel ware.

In Chicago and Kansas City the investigation of election frauds proved that women ward healers and precinct workers were just as crooked as the buck Democrats with whom they collaborated in the dirty work of the reigning gangs. In the U. S. congress no woman has ever made any notable contribution to the common good, and Mrs. Mary Norton of New Jersey, who enjoys a very good press because she wears the union label as a political badge, is, in fact, only the political creature of Frank Hague, who refused even to let the C.I.O. hire a hall or hold a meeting in a park.

Mrs. Norton's political patron has had notorious dealings with mercenary labor skates of the A. F. of L., one of whom, out of the priestly poverty of a selfless unioneer, personally dug up $80,000 in one hunk to settle Hague's income tax. This impressive arraignment had been amassed by Mrs. Norton's political boss on a salary which never has exceeded $7,500 a year. Mrs. Norton, thus, notwithstanding the reputation which chivalrous forbearance has permitted her to acquire, is seen to be, in fact, only another boss-elected member of congress with what noble yearnings we do not know but with no more civic virtue than any trousered member of the same low political kind.

Women Politicians
Adopt Men's Methods
The kind of women who do become prominent politicians are more political than feminine. By the time they rise to power they are deprived of the inherent special virtue which women were supposed to bring to politics, due to their long association with the men. They have learned to play politics the men's way. Otherwise they would not get there, and, of course because the males are still overwhelmingly more numerous in politics and in office, the presence of a woman in an important post creates embarrassment and needless annoyance. The woman in this role is a political and personal affliction. She is in unnatural surroundings and must be deferred to for reasons deep in the nature of human beings, even when she is absurdly and dangerously wrong.

I would like to add too that most of the women who are active in politics are officious and rather shallow in personality and temperament after long detachment from the office which nature appointed for FACE CONTOUR—Deanna Durbin has a squarish face. Note her brow line, how lashes are darkened and the smaller lower lip-line.

How you dress your hair and apply your make-up depends upon the shape of your face. It pays to study your reflection and to comb your hair in different arrangements as hidden beauty of face contour and hairline can be brought out.

It is estimated by beauty experts that there are eight general face shapes—oval, round, diamond, triangle, inverted triangle, square and oblong. There are coiffure and make-up rules for each shape. Today we will consider the girl with a round face and the girl with a square face.

The Round Face

How to make a round face appear more oval is the given problem. The hair should be dressed away from the face, with fulness above the earline to create an illusion of length. The back hair may be worn in a long bob effect filling in the space behind the ears.

Rouge should be placed on the outer area of the cheeks starting near the eye and blended down to chin. A foundation cream and powder which are darker than your current skin tone tends to reduce the fullness of your face.

Your brows should be left in natural arches, trim but not pencil-thin. In fact the beginning of the arch near your nose should be accented by a pencil unless your brows are very dark. Apply mascara from the center of your upper eyelashes to the outer lashes directly upward and be sure they do not look beaded.

If your mouth is too small and too full for the size of your face, elongate it by applying your lip rouge with a brush to the far corners and minimize its fullness by not rouging a "high" cupid's bow. Draw the Joan Crawford type of mouth.

The Square Face

A square chin line and jaw as broad as forehead forms a square face and the hairline is usually high in front with no widow's peak. A girl with this shape face must dress her hair soft and loose with side fullness to minimize the strong jaw line. A side-part is usually best with the top hair combed in light side swirl.

Place your rouge low from a line even with the middle of your ear down to and on the side of your chin. However, do not let the rouge go on the inner side of the cheek—keep it on the outer side. Blend it carefully.

Trim your brows so they will have a slight arch beginning low near the eye and extending high over outer corner of the eye with a sudden drop at the end. The brow should be thicker near the eye. Eye-shadow should be applied from center of lid to outer part of lid and then up to brow line—sort of oriental in effect. Only the upper outer lashes should be touched with color to follow the shadow line. If your lips tend to be squarish you should curve them more when applying lip rouge. Do not extend the rouge to the very corners. Instead draw more perfect, rounded lips ignoring the lower square corners particularly.

Good Taste Today

DEFINITE LIMITS

Oh dear, oh dear! Marriage and business relationships have more ways of getting into tangles! This question for example, "How far may a married employee go in being alone with her employer?" is what this wife's husband would like to know!

"My wife's employer is driving west, and as my wife has always wanted to visit friends out there, and as she is taking her vacation at the same time, she thinks it would be quite all right for her to drive with this man. They would have to be on the way at least three days and nights. I say this is wrong, and she says a business woman has excuses for such otherwise questionable plans. I say in this case business doesn't excuse it. The employer is a divorced man, or else I'm sure there would be other-ways trouble, too."

This time I really must agree with the husband. It seems to me that business in no way comes into this very questionable plan. If her employer were a lawyer, or a politician, or some one going to a business conference, at which it is important to have his secretary with him, this situation would make it entirely proper for her to go. Or, to stretch a point, if she, for instance, had come from the Far West herself, and she had for long wanted to go out to see her parents, and driving out with him would make her going possible, this would be an adequate reason. But under the circumstances described, the impression is of a vacation motor trip taken with him!

Secret in Play of Poor Trump Suit

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Last Thursday's Question

Question 6: You are West, declarer at a contract of six spades. North opens the deuce of hearts. Your hand and dummy are as follows:

West (You)	Dummy
♠ A K J 10 9	♠ A Q 3 2
♥ A K Q	♥ 6 5 4
♦ A Q 9	♦ 7 6 3 2
♣ A K	♣ 7 5

The missing trumps are divided 2-2. How do you play the hand?

Answer: With the trumps divided 2-2, you are absolutely certain to bring home the slam, regardless of the position of diamond honors, if you play for the proper elimination and throw-in. Winning the opening lead, you cash the A-K of spades and all your tricks in hearts and clubs, then enter dummy by overtaking the spade jack, and lead a diamond. The crucial point now is merely to cover whatever diamond South plays. If he plays low, you play the nine and North must either return a diamond up to your A-Q or another suit which you can ruff in dummy while discarding your diamond queen. If South plays the ten or jack on the diamond lead from dummy, cover with the queen, and a diamond return from North (if he wins with the king) is bound to give you the fulfilling tricks. For any other line of play, including a first round diamond finesse to your queen, take 25 points (demerit).

Question 7: Only East-West vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	1 spade	?	?

You are South, and hold:

♠ A J 9 7	♥ Q 10 4	♦ J 7 6	♣ K 10 8 3
-----------	----------	---------	------------

What call do you make?
Answer: Double. The vulnerability conditions make this the outstanding call. You should be able to collect many hundreds of points from the vulnerable opponents if your partner can leave in the double. (If you answered one no trump, take 35 points (demerit); two no trump, 25 points; three no trump, 40; two clubs, 20.)

Today's Question

Question 13: Only East-West vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

1 spade	2 clubs	Double	2 hearts

You are South and hold:

In most cases the secret of playing a ragged trump suit consists in not drawing trumps.

------------	-------	---------	-----------

SOUTH

♠ 7	♥ K J 7 3 2	♦ K 7 4 3 2	♣ Q 8 4
-----	-------------	-------------	---------

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the jack of clubs, dummy and East ducking, declarer winning with the queen. A low heart was led to the ace and the top spades were cashed, South discarding clubs. A low spade was ruffed and a diamond led to the queen. West perforce won with the ace, and since he could not lead a trump without sacrificing his queen, decided to continue clubs. South ruffed and cashed the king of diamonds. A low diamond was ruffed with dummy's small trump and dummy's last club was ruffed. Another diamond was ruffed with the queen's nine, East being unable to overruff, and South, of course, had to make his king of trumps for the eleventh trick.

Dear Mrs. Post: May I send my employer a card or two, or even three, of interesting places I shall visit when I am on my vacation? I have quite a few names on this post-card list, but wondered if it could be considered questionable for me to remember him.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Thousands of wives are just as guilty as Claud's but they try to throw the blame upon their husbands. If a wife is a poor cook, a husband can legitimately satisfy his gastric hunger at a neighboring restaurant. But if she refuses to feed his sex hunger, she thinks she is abused if he succumbs to the voluptuous offerings of other women. No woman is ever passionate, not even excepting Cleopatra. But she can at least act the part in the interest of domestic harmony.

CASE R-194: Claud G., aged 42, is head of a finance company.

"I've read your case records daily for three years," he commented, "and have found that you have diagnosed my problem many times through your answers to other patients."

"Now I am in a peculiar situation. I have had a clandestine affair with a girl of 27 for the past six months. It was very thrilling and exciting at first. In fact, it still is quite pleasant."

"My wife has grown fat and more interested in her women's clubs than in romance. I had grown a bit worried that I was getting old on the skirts. This romance proved a tonic to me at first."

"But the nervous strain and tension involved in telling I don't mind the expense, but I hate the secretiveness. I am an important business man in my city. I'd gladly give up the affair and return to my wife."

"But she has never had any interest in sex. Her mother prejudiced her so intensely on the subject that she has never been able to get over it. But she does give me a comfortable, respectable feeling. I hardly know what to do. If you'd write my problem as a Case Record, maybe my wife would read it and take the hint."

"I love her and want to stay at home. But I like some real affection and romance, too. Why can't she give me the thrills that this 27-year-old girl does? Then everything would be perfect."

DIAGNOSIS: This isn't the first time that patients have asked me to discuss their problems in the hope that their mates would read the account and profit thereby.

Yesterday I mentioned that the two fundamental hungers to be satisfied in marriage are the gastric and the sexual.

Husbands can even dine at restaurants and stay happily married despite wives who aren't good cooks. But a woman simply must be a good marital partner or she'll find her spouse growing disinterested in her and desirous of finding a satisfactory mate.

Frigidity in wives is a psychological thing. In past generations sex subjects were taboo and many wives, like Claud's, were even prejudiced against the most essential aspect of happy marriage.

Thousands of women have consulted me as a psychologist and physician, but I have never seen or heard of a passionate woman—not even excepting Cleopatra.

I have had patients who were nymphomaniacs and prostitutes, but not one of these was passionate. Even the nymphomaniacs entered into their promiscuous affairs not because of an organic sexual hunger, but because it flattered their vanity to find that they could seduce men.

Every nymphomaniac I have ever encountered has suffered from some inferiority complex, such as an amputated breast, ugly birth mark, disfiguring scar, etc., which has made her feel below par. To reassure her wounded vanity, she seeks affairs with men, just to see if she really has it.

Wives are foolish, however, not to study the art of happy marriage. Don't get fat and sloppy after 40. Don't affect prudishness and disinterest.

And don't be wounded because your husband tells you are not passionate. No woman is! But women often act the part for ulterior reasons, as did Cleopatra. Be a real wife, and eliminate the need for your husband's clandestine affairs. Send for my medico-psychological bulletin on "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing dime and stamped envelope.

Candy Should be Used as Food but Not as a Bribe

BY ANGELO PATRI

"My child is forever asking for a penny for candy. Ought I to give it to him? His grandfather says yes, but I think no. I give him good plain food that nourishes him and I don't want him to lose his appetite for it by eating candy."

Let's get this candy idea straight. Candy is food and children need it. They need the energy that the sugar supplies, and they are entitled to the pleasure that the good taste gives them.

My experience teaches me that good home management of candy does away with the penny-for-candy notion and puts candy where it belongs, on the diet list. It is not used as a bribe, reward, nor as a reward. You don't say: "Now you take this nasty medicine and I'll give you a nice baked potato with butter." But you are likely to say, "I'll give you a piece of candy from mother's box."

When candy is used that way, as a bribe, reward, privilege, it is at once lifted out of its proper place on the ordinary plane of life to the higher plane of privilege and that, to my way of thinking, is what makes the trouble.

Need Energy

Buy good candy. Serve it as you would serve any dessert. Have a box or a jar of it handy and give the children a piece in between times. About ten in the morning children can do with a bit of candy. They need the energy it supplies. Again about three thirty to four they can have a ration of candy because they need it and because they enjoy it.

Children used to eating candy that way are not likely to bother about the street stand candy before school. A dose of that candy just before a school session is about as bad a preparation for school as a child can make. And that goes for high school youth, too. The time for candy is when the energy runs low, not before school in the morning or afternoon sessions.

An Allowance Helps

All children, all youths, should have an allowance. The older ones can earn pocket money and that will do them good. The penny for candy was not good training for children. The penny goes in a flash and the next penny is needed. If it is always forthcoming the child gets the idea that that is the nature of money—an endless stream from pocket to shop. You've seen what that does to some young people and maybe you can prevent that in the younger ones now.

Set a payday even for the young spender. He gets his three day allowance. He is too young to carry on for a longer period. Even three days is beyond his comprehension. Give him his spending money regularly and none between. In that way he learns his first lesson in using money. When it is gone it is gone for good. That and the home supply of candy will start him the right way. But don't teach him that candy is not good for him, nor that he shouldn't have it, save as a privilege. Use it as you would use a baked potato, in season, and things will work out better.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Schedule Not Needed to Regulate Marital Life

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—We, meaning husband and wife, have had many, many disagreements about our association with other people, what time we should spend together, our affections, our individual liberty, and so forth. We seem to be unable to agree on these things and so we have worked out a plan covering our daily routine. This schedule covers our home life, our meals together, what evenings we shall stay at home and read or talk together, our going to places of amusement with each other or with friends, our each can invite to the house, our use of the car, what amusements we shall have together, what alone, etc. Do you think that this plan will work?

MR. AND MRS. E. C. H.

Dorothy Dix

Answer: I am afraid not. The idea of a contract between a husband and wife sounds fine, but the catch comes in when you try to enforce it. Because, you see, marriage is one of the things in which there are a million exceptions to every rule. You can say, for instance, that when a man and woman get married they sign an iron-clad contract to love and cherish each other until death do them part and that the husband in addition agrees in the presence of witnesses to endow his wife with all his worldly goods. But if they fall out of love with each other and quarrel and fight, there is no process of law that can turn them into lovers again. Nor can the woman who is married to a tightwad collect more than a quarter at a time from him without chloroforming him.

You see marriage isn't just a matter of form, it is the spirit that goes into it that makes it worth while. If you only kiss your husband or your wife because it is your duty to show some affection to your mate, you might as well flap a cold pancake across his or her cheek. Your heart must be on your lips if the recipient of your kisses gets any thrill from it.

If a husband only works because the law requires him to support his wife, it is sheer drudgery that he begrudges, but if he bends every energy to making money because he wants to make life soft and easy for his wife and hang jewels upon her, then his toil is joy.

And it is love for her husband and a desire to make him happy and comfortable that makes a wife diligent in offering herself up as a burnt sacrifice on the cook stove in preparing his favorite dishes.

So I think if you and your husband only get together and spend certain specified evenings talking together, and go out together at specified times because it is so set down in the bond, that you will bore each other to death, and your experiment will end in the divorce court. You can't practice the domestic virtues by routine. They have to be spontaneous to have any pep in them.

So my suggestion to you is to forget your contract. Forget even that you have any duty toward each other, or that each has any right to expect anything of the other, and just do things for each other and fall in with each other's plans because you want to.

If your husband wants you to step out with him, put on your hat and go. Or if you want to stay at home and read a new book, let him go without making any protest.

If you don't like each other's friends, you can't cultivate a taste for them, you can't at least give them a civil welcome when they come to your house. And you can keep from arguing with your husband or wife just the same way as you keep from arguing with your boss.

A little common sense, a little forbearance and a lot of determination to make a go of it will make any marriage a success.

Dear Miss Dix—My husband is good and kind and considerate in every way. He is loving and gentle and remembers the little gifts and flowers that every woman craves. But he keeps a picture of his deceased wife in our living room and another in the bedroom, and besides the picture in the bedroom he keeps a fresh rosebud in a vase.

Most of the time I manage to ignore the pictures and the flowers, but when I see them I feel as if I were in the presence of a rival.

They may know that they are superior in all respects to their husbands' first wives, that they are more congenial, that they are better wives and make their husbands happier, and that they have their husband's mature affection. But they also know that the first wives had what they can never have—their husbands' young love and romance, and that is a bitter pill for any woman to swallow.

So I beseech all men who have second wives to make it a little easier for No. 2 by putting No. 1's picture away, and by refraining from descending on No. 1's virtues and telling No. 2 of the way she did things.

But it does look as if men who have been good husbands to No. 1 and want to be good husbands to No. 2 might temper their devotion to the dear departed with a little common sense and intuition.

Surely they should not need to be told that if their second wives love them they are more jealous of their dead wives than they could be of any living woman. For they know that the one thing with which no woman can compete is an idealized memory.

They may know that they are superior in all respects to their husbands' first wives, that they are more congenial, that they are better wives and make their husbands happier, and that they have their husband's mature affection. But they also know that the first wives had what they can never have—their husbands' young love and romance, and that is a bitter pill for any woman to swallow.

So I beseech all men who have second wives to make it a little easier for No. 2 by putting No. 1's picture away, and by refraining from descending on No. 1's virtues and telling No. 2 of the way she did things.

Johnson Insists President's Son Should Earn His Uniform

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C.—Elliott Roosevelt says I am a "disgusting old man" and now, in the same connection, Ernest Lindley says I am a Mexican jumping bean. In criticizing the appointment by Roosevelt of Elliott Roosevelt to a soft non-combatant job as kiwi air captain, I didn't call any names. I didn't even assess any blame to any of the Roosevelt family except inadvertence. This column has opposed attacking the president for the errors of his kin and has consistently defended the latter.

I still insist that Mr. Roosevelt did not originate the error of Elliott's appointment. For one reason, he is too good a politician to permit this bitter and unnecessary affront, directly or indirectly, to almost every home and mother in America.

Even that political conclusion is a little bit unfair. FDR likes to emulate Tr. Teddy's boys, in 1917 or before, rushed to combat service. Some served in England's armies before 1917. I forget the exact record but, as I remember, all saw front-line service; all, I seem to recall, came away bearing honorable scars; one I think was wounded three times; one was gassed; and one, I know—the youngest and best-beloved—shot from the skies in flaming death, lies buried by his chivalrous enemies in the field of France. When they sought to bring the honored little that was left of him home to his mother, TR wrote General Peyton March, who had also lost a son, "Where the tree falls, there let it lie."

This was the kind of service and sacrifice, without "favor or affection" on which the success of both the world war draft and the World War army depended absolutely. This was the example of another Roosevelt family that did as much to vitalize success as any other thing. Compared with this, Elliott's scuttlery simply won't do.

You can't make me believe that the president doesn't feel all this. Nobody who knows him can fail to respect his great personal gallantry. This action of Elliott's must have made his heart cringe. He has suffered more hurt from such errors of others, than from anything he himself ever imagined.

In general, nobody can much criticize his philosophy about that. His children are all adults. They must live their own lives. I never saw a man so shrink from nagging others. In spite of his political purges and strategy, he does less personal bulldozing than anybody I ever knew. There is some thing so gentle, appealing, heroic and attractive about that man that I don't know how anybody who knows him can really "hate Roosevelt." I don't. In spite of almost complete disagreement, the fact is just the reverse.

Every Mother's Son Should Have Equal Right

Nevertheless, on the cold hard facts, this appointment of Elliott was a 2-way error of the very first magnitude. At the initial step it takes the guts out of any pretension of fairness and decency in the draft. If your boy and my boy don't stand on exactly equal grounds before those neighborly tribunals the whole system is so rotten that I couldn't honestly lend it the trifling support of the infinitesimal echo of a word.

In the second place it restores the curse of our army—political favoritism in the appointment of commissioned incompetents—a curse that dogged and frustrated our armed forces from Washington to Wilson. For decades it took its toll in national humiliation and the loss of millions of treasure of many battles and campaigns, and in some of the greatest threats to its existence that this nation ever knew. For these and other reasons Woodrow Wilson threw it out. If this appointment is not revoked Franklin Roosevelt will have unconsciously restored it. I know he doesn't desire that.

Please, please Mr. President reverse this error. It isn't enough as you suggested it was, for Elliott to call me a "disgusting old man." There is only six months' difference in your age and mine. It isn't enough to have Ernest Lindley attempt to defend this by admitting practically every point I made and then calling me "as inconsistent as a Mexican jumping bean."

In Ernest's eyes I am "inconsistent" because when I think you're right I say so, and, in the contrary case, I don't. Ernest, like

Tells Commons London Can't be Raider-Proof

London—(P)—Captain H. H. Balfour, under-secretary for air, told the house of commons Wednesday that a completely raider-proof defense is not in sight, notwithstanding that the barrage protecting London grows increasingly effective.

"Large mass day attacks undoubtedly are the major threats to this country," Balfour said, "but the enemy has failed to break down our fighter defense in this major effort."

He declared no system could be effective to the point that no raider would be able to get through under cover of cloud or night.

"The answer to the critic who asks, 'where are our fighters to day?'" he said, "is that for every raider a critic sees our fighter defenses have intercepted masses and thus saved the country's defenses."

as Juliano recalled them to her memory with little things she only half remembered. "Dolores, of the night of bad dreams."

Dolores giggled, and Constance with her. That was the night following a fiesta when she had not eaten too much, but had stolen a ride on her father's horse and been thrown. Dolores had tried to quiet the nightmares that followed.

"And Francisca, who makes of shells the toys?"

"I still have them," Constance told the little brown man. "They're in a glass case in my room. The little mussel man and woman; the birds and butterflies of clam shells and the tiny village in the abalone shell."

They were murmurs of awe then a rushing babble of Spanish and she was moved towards the house.

Dolores took her to her room; the very room she had occupied as a child. Not a thing had changed. The walls were freshly white, the drapes of damask as rich and brightly blue as though no years had passed. There was fresh fruit in a carved bowl by her bedside; flowers in pottery vases on painted tables.

"I could almost believe you were expecting me," Constance said to Dolores who giggled again. "Now ask Juliano if Mr. Taylor will see me at once."

Mr. Taylor could be seen, but Juliano shrugged his shoulders expressively.

P. T. Taylor The manager's house was on the hill above the ranch house. One could go by the road, or cut through the lower grounds. Constance preferred the short cut. It took her through the patio, a sheltered place with jars of blooming flowers and a center fountain of covered tile around which were grouped deep basket-chairs.

Again Constance felt the place had an air of expectancy and wondered if these servants so longed for the return of the Cabrillos that they kept it ever ready.

A grilled gate opened off the patio and here, through a cavern of willow boughs, she crossed to the lower stables where the mounts of the household had once been kept, and around these to a footpath which led upwards.

Everywhere was evidence of care. She remarked this to Juliano.

"Si, excellenta, Senorita Conchita," he assured her gravely. "Thees Taylors they are the best we have had at Cabrillo. It is of unfortunate Americano efficiency they should wish to change."

Constance pondered over this a moment, then forgot as she saw the manager's house ahead, a miniature El Cabrillo, one end of the patio glassed to give a view of the sea, visible above the trees which sheltered the main house below.

A stout woman appeared—Mear the housekeeper—to eye Constance with belligerent suspicion.

Constance smiled at her with Michael Mahoney's eyes as Juliano, who hadn't once donned his hat, put it on the better to sweep it from his head and bow low over it as he announced:—"The Senorita Conchita Cabrillo."

"Humph," grunted the woman, but her grimace had relaxed. "Come in, pet, he's waitin' for you and a worse temper man never had it. I'm kintin' the tea of his and pricking him for every sin he's ever committed, so he's in bad pain."

They walked across the patio to a room and surprisingly Meg leaned down to whisper: "Talk right up to him" then threw open the door and with a fine imitation of Juliano announced in her rich brogue:—"Senorita Conchita Cabrillo."

It was too much for Constance. She went in to P. T. Taylor laughing. She couldn't even despise the man as she'd planned. Besides he was a pathetic figure a great bulk of a man with one swathed leg swimming in the air, a great shock of white hair on a pillow, and a pair of rebellious gray eyes.

"Sorry I can't get up," he apologized. "Doc put on a bulldozing contest and hog-tied me to that confounded derrick."

Constance sat down beside him, aware of his keen scrutiny.

"So you're one of the Cabrillos," "One of the seeds," agreed Constance, and, explained, "A vaquero, last night, assured me we'd gone to seed."

"Pedro, probably," rumbled Taylor. "I'll talk to that young sprig."

"We do rattle around," admitted Constance, "so don't blame him. Besides, I intend to put him in his place."

"You'll be the first one," sputtered Meg.

Taylor changed the subject abruptly. "Suppose you came out to look us over and learn how to get more money out of us? Well, you can't!"

Beer Wholesalers Face New Problems

Milwaukee—(P)—Members of the National Beer Wholesalers' association, Inc. yesterday heard a discussion of the possible effects of conscription and national defense on their business.

Miss A. M. Macdonagh, of Bloomington, Ill., said that transportation, taxes and a labor shortage were chief factors to be faced by the wholesale beer industry.

L. S. Kelley, of Chicago, executive secretary of the association, said that efforts were being made to eliminate a "cheap and anti-social attitude that surrounds our product."

It was too much for Constance. She went in to P. T. Taylor laughing. She couldn't even despise the man as she'd planned. Besides he was a pathetic figure a great bulk of a man with one swathed leg swimming in the air, a great shock of white hair on a

New London Given Central Ski Tourney

Event Is Scheduled For Jan. 26

New London — The New London Ski club has been awarded the 1941 Central United States Ski jumping championship tournament, it was announced yesterday by W. T. Comstock, delegate of the New London club to the annual convention of the Central Ski Association at Ironwood, Mich., last weekend. Date for the event has been tentatively set for Jan. 26.

The championship tourney, second in importance only to the national jumping events, was awarded to New London unanimously by the convention delegates on the basis of the success of the first championship event held here two years ago. More than 10,000 persons attended the meet in which only riders of championship caliber are allowed to compete.

Since the first championship tourney here in 1939, the Mosquito hill slide, site of the annual ski meets, has been vastly improved, reducing jumping hazards and improving take-off and landing characteristics. A northeast gate interfered with the 1939 championship jumps and with more minor improvements planned at the hill this fall, an even more successful event is anticipated.

The special event will take the place of the usual tournament held at Mosquito hill each year under the auspices of the association. Two tournaments were held here in 1939 when the Central championship was awarded to New London after its regular tournament had been held and Chicago was unable to stage the affair.

Trucks Hope For First Win

Invade Menasha on Friday Evening for Battle With Jays

Clintonville — Clintonville High school golden clad griders are centering their activities this week on preparations for meeting the Menasha Bluejays at Menasha Friday evening under the lights. It will be the fourth Northeastern Wisconsin conference game for the Clints this season and as yet they still have to chalk up a win. The Bluejays have had two starts and have dropped both games.

Clintonville has met Neenah, New London and West De Pere and played nip and tuck games losing to West De Pere last Friday 14 to 13. Menasha, on the other hand, has met the two top notch teams, Kaukauna and Shawano, and taken a drubbing from both.

Coach Swede Johnson of the Clints has been drilling his proteges harder than ever this week because Friday night's game will be the last chance for his club to crash the win column in the conference. Following Menasha, Clintonville will finish the season against Kaukauna and Shawano. A non-conference game with Marion also remains on the Clint schedule.

Last Saturday while Menasha was taking a 19 to 0 drubbing at the hands of Shawano, members of the Clint eleven were on hand and had an opportunity to look at their opponents. The Bluejays are a rangy squad and have a couple of boys who need watching.

The Clintonville backfield for Friday night's contest undoubtedly will see the same four boys who started against West De Pere. Jim Breed, who has been playing bang-up ball, will call signals from the left half spot. Hunky Bodah will be at the other half, Jack De Cour-sin will be at full, and Jim Werner at the blocking back. The starting line will see Lyle Roloff and Myril Korb at ends, Curt Lemke and Red Klitz at tackles, Lawrence Geiger and Bud Zoch at guards, and Rheindol Kiel at center.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

What probably will be the largest high school football crowd in the valley, and certainly in the Northeastern Wisconsin conference, is preparing to invade Kaukauna Friday night. And there's no reason to believe that it won't see a ball game that will thrill—providing one or the other team doesn't fold up under the pressure.

The opposing teams will be Kaukauna and Shawano, both undefeated this season and both claiming teams that sparkle with stars. The game also features Kaukauna's homecoming battle and will be the first night game in some time on a Kaw field. The city's baseball lights recently were moved to the gridiron and will be ready for the first time.

Arrangements are being made to take care of 4,000 or more persons which means that Kaukauna is looking around for all the extra bleachers it can find and is arranging for an army of cops to keep order. And both the bleachers and the cops will be necessary.

While the game is being billed as something of a battle between Karl Giordana for Kaukauna versus Billy Reed for Shawano, the folks would do well to remember there are other lads on the field. It's true that Giordana is a standout griddier and a great competitor. Around Kaukauna they say Reed is a great competitor and an all-around athlete but not at all the football player that Giordana is. Perhaps Friday will tell.

Aside from their stars, both teams have talent in the backfield that makes the stars a success. Any one of the backs can throw the ball and any one of them can catch it. They also have better than ordinary ability as running although both throw their chips on their stars when the going is tough.

As for the lines, they boast enough veterans to gladden any coach's heart. Shawano is reported to have a slight edge in weight but no one will concede a thing on the question of Kaukauna's fight.

The coaches will be Paul Little for Kaukauna, winner of two straight titles and several others to boot in his long period at Kaukauna, and Cliff Ditts for Shawano. The latter has been at the top in basketball several times but grid honors have been evading him.

As both mentors are past masters in the art of psychology, the art is being practiced hard this week and has been for some time. It's more than likely that the team that wins will be the one that is keyed the highest.

Appleton high and Lawrence college footballers may be in for a bad Saturday, a bad Saturday.

Appleton meets Manitowoc here and indications are that the Shipbuilders will be trying to rebound from last week's defeat at the hands of East. According to reports, the Ships have a good ball team but they were jittery when they took the field against the Red Devils and their lack of poise soon told in fumbles and missed assignments and poor tackling.

They also feel that they should have a share in the conference honors again this season and that if they "stay in there and pitch" they may be able to tie for the bunting. So they'll start pitching Saturday here. At least that's what they say.

And as for Lawrence—Unless you stop and think back, you probably don't recall that Lawrence defeated Carleton twice in as many years and that the Carls feel like the National leaguers in the world series—that the worm must turn some time.

In 1938 Lawrence tipped the Carls at Northfield as it won the Midwest title. Then last season Carleton came here with a good ball team and suffered a humiliating 18 to 8 defeat. It was Lawrence's homecoming and the Vikings were hopped so high that even Vince Jones was able to intercept a forward pass and lumber for a touchdown.

So, Lawrence goes to Northfield Saturday and is wondering whether the roof isn't going to cave in. And as he prepares to leave, Coach Bernie Heselson of the Vikes moans "And all my pals from St. Paul probably will be down to see the game; you know Minnesota doesn't play Saturday."

Lorenz Returns as Badgers Put Final Touches on Attack

Madison — (1) — Final touches were put on pass defense and offensive formations at the Wisconsin football camp today in preparation for the Western conference opener with Iowa at Iowa City Saturday.

Taking part in yesterday's drills was Albert Lorenz, of Oak Park, Ill., senior end who was reinstated after being declared ineligible shortly before the Marquette game. The executive committee of the college of letters and science decided that the physical chemistry course he failed in summer school was a personal elective which should not influence his eligibility since he completed his junior year with good grades in all subjects.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher, who said the committee's action was a "great break for the team as well as Lorenz," said he would use Lorenz Saturday.

Anticipating an Iowa pass attack, Stuhldreher said he planned to devote most of the remainder of the week to aerial defense. Some time also will be spent in polishing Badger offense tactics.

Nickels Sweep Match In Women's Circuit

Nickels won three games from Dimes during women's Pot of Gold league matches at Y. M. C. A. alleys this week. Quarters won the odd game from Pennies. Salt had high individual marks of 133 and 355.

Match scores:

W. L.	W. L.
Quarters (2)	672 742 669 2083
Pennies (1)	659 658 727 2044
Nickels (3)	586 583 591 1760
Dimes (0)	558 473 533 1584

Buck Called to Army

Kenosha — (4) — The Army called and Kenosha's Cardinals lost their star backfield ace, Art Buck. He was ordered into immediate service in the army air corps.

Cornell Pits Strong Line Against Beloit

Mount Vernon, Ia. — When Cornell and Beloit meet Saturday on the Blue's Hancock Field in Beloit the battle, a very important one in determining the ultimate conference champion, will be one of an outstanding line against an outstanding backfield.

The Purple forward wall is perhaps the toughest line in the conference although it has a weak spot or two due to inexperienced men. The Beloit backfield has been rated as the best offensive quartet in the Midwest loop.

Cornell this week has rested a good deal. The Purple as a whole lost a lot of weight in last Saturday's game with Ripon which was played under a blazing sun. The team had also worked exceptional hard preparing for its first three games. The result has been that they have needed rest this week more than any other one thing.

It is expected that Gene Tornquist, the 133 pound all-conference back who was out for nearly two weeks with a sprained foot and was handicapped last week by his injury, will be in much better shape against Beloit than he was against Ripon.

Durocher Is Signed To Manage Dodgers

New York — (4) — Leo Durocher will manage the Brooklyn Dodgers again next year.

Larry MacPhail, president of the club, announced today that the fiery little infielder signed his 1941 contract during the world series and that it had been approved by the club's board of directors. Salary terms were not disclosed.

Oil Well Must Wait

Falls City, Neb. — (4) — A little thing like bringing in an oil well can't be allowed to interfere with a football game.

Operators announced they would not acidize the Eickhoff well near here until after they attended the Nebraska-Indiana game at Lincoln Saturday.

Rams' Record in Pro League Is Worth Noting

Cleveland Lost to Bears by 7 Points; Bays Working Hard

Green Bay. — On the basis of respective showings thus far this season, the Cleveland Rams, who battle the Green Bay Packers at City stadium on Sunday afternoon, have a record that is as impressive if not more so than the title defending champions of the National Football league. The kickoff is at 2 p. m.

Both clubs have met the Chicago Bears and the Philadelphia Eagles and each beat the Eagles and were defeated by the Bears. In the Philadelphia contest the Packers earned victory by a 7-point margin while the Rams topped them by 8 points. Against the Bears, however, the Cleveland club looked more powerful, losing by only 7 points compared to 31 for the Packers.

Individual team records in league competition to date appear as follows:

Green Bay Packers
Green Bay	27 Philadelphia
Green Bay	10 Chicago Bears
Green Bay	31 Chicago Cards
Green Bay	68 Opponents

Cleveland Rams
Cleveland	21 Philadelphia
Cleveland	0 Detroit
Cleveland	14 Chicago Bears

Sunday will be the eighth time the teams have met since the inter-club series began in 1931. Out of the seven games the Packers have won six and have run up a total of 181 points to Cleveland's 74. The Rams' only victory in the series came last year when they administered a surprise 27 to 24 licking to the Packers in the initial game at Green Bay. In the second meeting of 1939 in the Ohio metropolis the Packers eked out a 7 to 6 win.

The Rams will arrive here Saturday morning and will work out at City stadium during the day. Coach E. L. (Curly) Lambeau of the Packers is trying to impress his squad that the passing combination of Parker Hall, ace tripe threat back of the Cleveland eleven, and Mike Kinkel of Michigan State and Maurice Palt of Carnegie Tech, two great receivers, is the equal of anything in the league.

This trio coupled with the plunging and rushing of Fullback Johnny Drake, who made three touchdowns in the game against Philadelphia, presents an offensive that promises to give the Packers plenty of trouble before the final gun barks.

Six-Man Football Boosted As Sport for Small Colleges

BY JERRY T. BAULCH

Jackson, Tenn. — (4) — Six-man football! Coach Frank Cheney of Lambuth College believes, is the salvation of colleges that find themselves unable to meet the high-pressure upkeep of the eleven-man game.

"Besides," he adds, "it's faster, there are fewer dangers of injuries, it's more of an open game and every position offers a chance for a boy to star."

Six-man football, Cheney contends, gives Mr. John Q. Fan a much-needed break. With so few players on the field, the spectator doesn't get lost in the confusion

The Kimberly Papermakers and the Manawa Wolves are on top of the Tri-County league after the first two weeks of conference games. Kimberly won its first game in a hard fought game with Pulaski by a score of 28 to 12. The game was featured by the 80-yard run of Erdman, Pulaski fullback for a touchdown. Smits, J. Gaffney and Van Cuyk starred for the Papermakers.

The Wolves kept their slate clean by eking out a tie with Omro, 7-7. The Marion Pigeons entered the win column at the expense of the Waupaca Spudders by a score of 21-6. The Pigeons were paced by Captain Wiseman, Adams, Draeger, Meyer and Buss while Rudersdorf, Durrant and Jensen looked good for the Spudders.

This week shows the Pigeons playing Omro under the lights at Omro.

Waupaca will be idle this week while Pulaski takes on a non-conference foe.

Reds' Victory In Series Big Aid to Baseball

National Leaguers Won All-Star Tilts And the World Title

BY JUDSON BAILEY

New York — (4) — The best thing that could have happened to baseball was the victory of the Cincinnati Reds in the world series. They made a "National league year" out of 1940 and restored the great American game to the competitive system. Even the American leaguers admit privately that the old one-sidedness was getting unhealthy.

It was a victory for the time tested standards of baseball — that pitching is 70 per cent of the game and that smartness is as good as strength.

In retrospect the series was so full of drama, joy and pathos that it might well have been a piece of fiction.

Both Surprise Clubs

To go back to the beginning, a year ago at this time nobody had the remotest thought that the Reds and Tigers would win their pennants in 1940. The Tigers had just finished fifth in the American league and the Reds had been wrecked by the all-conquering Yankees. The wise men said no team ever recovered from the shock of being steam-rollered in four straight by the Yankees.

Yet out of this bottomless pit into which the National league had fallen came a courageous combination from the smallest city in the major leagues to overthrow the "superior beings" who inhabited their rival territory.

Bill Reorganized Club

The whole Cincinnati organization is an efficient unit, but most of the credit, of course, goes to Billy McKechnie, who also guided two National league All-Star collections to triumph over the American league this year — first in Florida last March and again in St. Louis in July.

He reorganized his Redlegs after the rout last year and brought them back again stronger and better than ever. He kept them rolling in spite of vicissitudes that would have capped a less courageous club — the death of Willard Herschberger and injuries to Ernie Lombardi and Lonnie Frey.

Kimberly — Indications are that a strong basketball league will be organized within the next month in the valley for nine team managers in this section have reported to George McElroy they have teams ready to start. Marquette Ready For Friday's Game With Iowa State

Milwaukee — (4) — Coach Paddy Driscoll's Marquette Hilltoppers will have to get along without Harvey Baerwald, Jack Pfeifer and Franklin Schweers, all sophomores, in Friday night's football game with Iowa State.

Baerwald, speedy reserve back, still is running a temperature. Pfeifer, regular tackle, has torn ligaments in his elbow. Schweers, reserve wingman, suffered a side injury in Monday's scrimmage.

Three Wisconsin game starters remained on the second team yesterday as a result of their poor showing.

Steve Sesskowski, Al Klug and Bill Fugate have taken over the fullback, tackle and guard posts vacated respectively by Doug Remmel, Dick Brye and Ted Tunia. Of the seven game players, between Marquette and the Cyclones the Avalanche has won five and lost two. Last year Marquette triumphed 21-2.

Coach Jim Yeager expects to start seven juniors, two seniors and a pair of sophs against Marquette.

Ames, Ia. — (4) — As the Iowa State Cyclones polished up their offense yesterday, Coach Jim Yeager commented that "the boys look better every day."

But he added "they're going to have to, if they expect to whip Marquette."

Yeager named the 30 Cyclones who will make the trip to Milwaukee for the annual battle with Marquette Friday night. The starting lineup will be the one that began against Kansas.

Billy Miller Is Windup Victor At Menasha

Beats Franke Gaudes; Archie LeMay, Neenah, Loses to Bill Pierce

Billy Miller, Chicago, decided to windup the series at Menasha. He defeated Franke Gaudes, Milwaukee, in the windup. Emmett Weller, St. Paul, decided to windup the series at Menasha. He defeated Archie LeMay, Neenah, in the semi. Johnny Gaudes, Milwaukee, received a decision over Charlie Mack, Milwaukee, in six rounds. Johnny Rozina, Milwaukee, won on a decision over Norb Geraden, Green Bay. Billy Pierce, West Allis, pounded a decision over Archie LeMay, Neenah. Matt Micholish, Milwaukee, defeated Red LeVass, Bay City, Mich. Otto Cronce, Green Bay, referee.

BY RANDY HAASE
Menasha—Billy Miller, Chicago, earned a decisive margin over Franke Gaudes, Milwaukee, in the eight-round windup of the professional boxing card sponsored by Menasha Elks Wednesday night before a crowd of several hundred at S. A. Cook armory. All six bouts went to decisions.

All eight rounds of the windup were fast with little clinching or mulling along the ropes. Gaudes took the first round on aggressive action. In the second he caught Miller off balance and scored a knockdown with a sharp blow. There was no count. Miller came back strong in the rest of the round. The third went to Miller with some straight lefts to the face.

At the end of the fourth Gaudes had Miller in a corner and was whaling away at the bell. Miller came back strong in the fifth, knocked Gaudes part way through the ropes for a 3-count and had his opponent groggy. Gaudes was in trouble through the last three rounds but kept on his feet while Miller flailed away.

Action in Semi
The semiwindup also was filled with action with Emmett Weller, St. Paul, finishing string in the last three rounds to decision. Indian Billy Lee, Milwaukee, at 150 pounds, Weller took the first round by use of a strong left. In the second Lee opened a cut over Weller's right eye. Both boxers slugged it out in the fourth with Weller getting a slight edge.

Weller landed several smashes to Lee's head in the fourth and scored a knockdown with Lee taking an eight count. In the fifth Weller opened a bad gash over Lee's left eye and worked on that during the last two rounds.

One change was made in the card with Johnny Gaudes, Milwaukee, Canadian bantam champion, defeating Charlie Mack, Milwaukee, in six rounds at 128 pounds. The boxers spent most of the six rounds at mugging. Lantette, who was scheduled to fight, injured his hand and Mack was secured as a substitute. The boxing commission physician refused to permit Wilbur Van, Green Bay, to fight and Gaudes, who came along from Milwaukee with his brother, stepped in.

Mack was at least 8 inches taller than Gaudes and the Canadian champion had to get in close. As a result most of the bout was in-fighting and failed to please the crowd. Both boxers fought from crouches and were doubled up no more than 2 feet above the canvas.

LeMay Outclassed
Although decidedly outclassed, Archie LeMay, Neenah, stayed four rounds with Billy Pierce, West Allis, in the second bout on the card at 160 pounds. Pierce staggered LeMay in the first round and punched him around the ring. He repeated in the second round. LeMay rallied in the third round and landed several pooping lefts to gain a narrow margin. In the fourth he fought in spurts and was forced to hang on but lasted to the bell.

Matt Micholish, Milwaukee, used a long left hand to pile up points and a decision over Red LeVass, Bay City, Mich. In the opener at 135 pounds. In the first round both boxers wrestled each other to the canvas. LeVass had an edge on harder blows and infighting but the Milwaukee boxer took the last three rounds.

Johnny Rozina, Milwaukee, defeated Norb Geraden, Green Bay, at 148 pounds as the Green Bay boxer tired in the last two rounds. The first round was even as the two boxers felt each other out. In the second both were missing consistently by six inches but Rozina had an edge in infighting. Geraden began to tire in the third and was groggy. Rozina used his fists and other parts of his body to fight his way out of the clinches. In the fourth Geraden went down for an eight count. He was groggy through most of the round and lashed out with his fists only occasionally.

Musso, Reliable Bear Lineman, Is Injured
Chicago—George Musso, 270 pound Chicago Bear lineman who until yesterday had not missed a practice in his eight years with the squad will be withheld from the Detroit game here Sunday because of a back injury.

He was injured last week in a game at Cleveland.

In his place at right guard will be Aldo Forte, 60 pounds lighter and seven years younger. Forte, former Montana State guard, came up to the National pro football league last year.

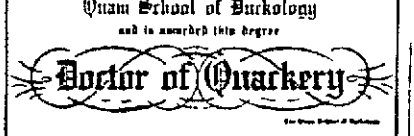

Hunters Perfect Duck Calls At Quam's Quack School

Quam Conducts One of His Classes

BY ARN PEARSON
Minneapolis—(AP)—From the remote marshes of Saskatchewan to the attic cellars, and even parlors of city homes these days the lusty call of the mallard is splitting the eardrums.

But that incessant "quack, quack, quack" is very likely to be a bit off mallard key. It's probably from duck hunters brushing up on their seductive calling as they assemble trinkets for the bag of tricks they hope will dupe the wily migratory waterfowl.

The Quackery Diploma

The embryo duck caller often expects mere lung pressure to properly toot the well rounded note of the mallard or the guttural rattling of a drake canvas-back. He's in for disillusionment.

It takes real skill and a great deal of practice to properly toot one of those calls, says Oscar Quam. And on that fact he's built up one of the country's oddest schools, the "Quam School of Duckology."

For those duck hunters who take the sport seriously enough to want to get in some real pre-season practice and drill, Quam, a veteran duck hunter, nightly conducts his class for duck callers.

Tapping at a chart of musical notes, he guides his pupils through the "greeting call" and the "come back call" of the mallard and the other quack-quackers.

Maestro Quam had an unusual heavy school this year as northern zone students rushed in to learn the calls before the duck season opening in those nine states on Oct. 1.

His "freshmen" this year ran more than 150 pupils. Some holders of Quam's "Doctor of Quackery" diplomas returned for post-graduate work.

Engineers May Give Irish Toughest Battle of Season

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York—(AP)—Well, ladies and gents, now that baseball is over, we can get down to the serious business of football. . . . Who was it said Notre Dame, would murder George Tech Saturday? . . . We don't believe it—we think those Engineers from the deep south will give the Irish one of their toughest battles of the season. . . . And don't forget, your Uncle Charlie picked those Reds in six or seven games. . . . Did you know that Commissioner Landis gave Al Schacht (the friend of man) a bad half hour for that Tony Galento beer stunt in the last game of the series? . . . Well, he did and if you don't believe Herr Schacht's ears are burning yet, ask him.

Today's Guest Star
Tom Meany, New York P. M.: "Of all the Dodgers who had such high hopes in the spring, Jimmy Rippel was the only one to get into the world series, except as a spectator. . . . And he made it by way of Montreal."

Series Aftermath
After all, it's asking a lot of any pitcher to win three games in a world's series, but that big Newsom almost made it, didn't he? . . . You can have your choice of the heroes, but Paul Derringer will take Jimmy Rippel for his. . . . Most amazed guy in the Reds' dressing room after the final out was young Mike McCormick. The kid couldn't bring himself to believe he was on a world's championship team. As the telegrams poured in, Mike could only mumble: "Geez, I'm getting wires from fellows I haven't seen or heard from in ten years. Say, this is a great life, ain't it?" . . . All the Reds agreed, of course. . . . Guess you noticed Billy Evans quit the Red Sox. Now watch him bob up as an owner in the American association, as we told you three or four days ago.

Carroll Hopes To Settle Score

Waukesha—(AP)—The Pioneers of Carroll college have a two-year-old score to settle here Saturday when they meet Lake Forest in a football battle.

It was in 1938 that Lake Forest handed Carroll's football team its first defeat after the Pioneers had run up 19 consecutive victories. Lake Forest scored two touchdowns in the first three minutes of play in that game and gained a lead that the Pioneers never could overtake.

Then came the basketball season and Lake Forest added another humiliation to the Pioneers. The Illinois boys whipped Carroll, to end the Pioneers' string of 33 successive victories.

Last football season Lake Forest continued to heap on the insults, beating the Pioneers in football, 7 to 6.

With his first string intact again, Coach John Breen figures his Carroll team can avenge those defeats this week-end, the team looked impressive in a 18 to 0 victory over Dubuque last week and should be in fine shape for this engagement.

THE FISHERMAN'S MUSKIE CHANCES ARE FAIRLY SLIM By Charley Johnson

If you go muskie fishing and catch a muskie, consider yourself fortunate. Not everybody has such good luck, even though he may have fished hard enough to deserve one.

We hear about the muskies that are caught, and about the big ones that get away, but we hear little of the days and weeks spent by fishermen who don't raise a muskie. There is, of course, little for those unfortunate ones to talk about.

When we go bass, walleye, or trout fishing, we are reasonably sure that on an average day we will get some fish, even though it may be only one or two. But when we go muskie fishing, we look upon it differently. If we don't get one the first week, or the entire fishing trip, we are not discouraged. That is muskie fishing. We knew our chances before we went, and we asked for it. What's more, we'll go again.

The reasons that everyone doesn't catch a muskie when he goes after one are quite simple and logical. In the first place, the muskies are scarce, even in good muskie waters. It takes so many hundreds of pounds of smaller fish to produce a bag muskie that there isn't enough food to grow many in any given area. Then, too, any muskie that has lived to maturity, say from seven years on up, isn't apt to commit suicide readily. He has learned some of the tricks of living and is wary.

We don't want to make the catching of a muskie appear too much of a task, however. Many of these big fish fall to the lures of a young or inexperienced fisherman.

Boy Catches One
Upon our arrival in a muskie camp one year, we saw an excited 12-year-old boy come running up the bank from a river, proudly lugging a ten or twelve-pound fish. He had arrived in camp only a half-hour before and had been so anxious to try out his new tackle that he hadn't taken time even to change his Sunday clothes.

We fished that stream and a nearby muskie lake for a week and didn't get even an undersized muskie, though our father-in-law, who never had fished for muskies before, took one.

On another occasion, we pulled a nice muskie out of another river within an hour after our arrival, but the three following days were fruitless. Then we moved our tent to a small lake a few miles away and within five minutes after we got into a boat, the wife caught a good one. We fished that lake for four more days, but to no avail.

Then there was the time late one September when we fished a famous body of muskie water (the Chippewa flowage, in Wisconsin) for five full days without a strike. Did we say five? Well, we mean nearly that long, for on our last hour of the fifth day, just before leaving for home, the wife took a handsome 16-pounder.

We could go on with other experiences, but they are all about the same—highly uncertain. There is only one bit of advice about muskie fishing we'd like to pass on: If the chances are 20 to one against your catching a muskie, give yourself the 20 chances. In other words, if you would catch a muskie, just "keep plugging" along, and sooner or later you'll get one that will give you the thrill of your life.

Cornell Tops In Passing

Drake Has Best Ground Gained Average, Grid Statistics Bureau Says

BY GAIL FOWLER
Seattle—(AP)—Cornell's 1940 grid-iron debut last week was just as impressive on the yardstick as it was on the yard lines.

The American Football Statistical Bureau, starting its annual compilation of the nation's collegiate football performances, today pegged the Ithacans as the country's top passing team and ranked them second on total offense—gains from rushing and passing—on the basis of the 34-0 thumping of Colgate.

Drake University, mainly through swamping Montana State 56-0 in its opener, has a two-game average of 465 yards per game to lead in total offense. Cornell is second with 426, followed by Brown, 425 in two games; Mississippi, with 421.7 in three games; and Rice, 420 in one game. Creighton, Iowa, Illinois and Arizona follow.

Creighton has the highest rushing average per game, 394 yards, followed by Brown, 380.5; Lafayette, conqueror of N.Y.U., 370. Iowa, 368, and Mississippi State, 333.5. Michigan, Wake Forest, Mississippi, Northwestern and Tennessee, playing tougher opposition than some of the first five, still push their way into the top ten. Wake Forest led this classification in 1939.

Cornell's 276 yards from 11 completions ranks the big red first as a passing team.

Illinois, with a 257 yard average, is second; Indiana third with 234; Missouri fourth with 205 and Texas A. and M., fifth with 183. Texas, Baylor, Rice, Arizona and Oklahoma pad out the list with strong representation.

Mississippi State, which plays Auburn this week, is the best defensive team to date, holding the opposition to 145 yards per game from both rushing and passing. Georgia is second with 265, Navy third with 295, Iowa fourth with 42 and Colorado State fifth with 55. Tennessee, Illinois, Kansas, Southern Methodist and Fordham round out the first ten.

Grr-oomph Makes Oomph, Say Weight-Lifting Champs

John Grimek does the one arm bent press with 200 pounds. Stunts like this one, say weight-lifting fans, produce physiques like those in the picture to the right.

York, Pa.—(AP)—There's always Terpak, 165; John Davis, 181; and oomph around the York bar bell. Steve Stanko, heavyweight, club but it takes a lot of grr-oomphs to get even a little oomph.

The grr-oomph grunts come in lifting weights—the bar bell variety—and the weights go as high as 300 pounds plus in the heavier divisions. Exponents of the sport say that giving the weights the old heave-o gives you the oomph that makes the gals look twice and earned a "Mr. America" title for member John Grimek.

Weight-lifting is a comparatively obscure sport. The York Club is just about undisputed top dog in such competition, though, and attracted considerable attention by sweeping the last A.A.U. competition at New York.

The team was composed of Joe Terpak, 123-pound class; John Terpak, 132; Anthony Terlak, 148. John has held two world's champion-

Newark Winner Of Little Series

Newark, N. J.—(AP)—The powerhouse Newark Bears were back on top of the minor league baseball world today after defeating the Louisville Colonels of the American association four games to two in the 1940 little world series.

Putting on the pressure last night the International leaguers trounced the Colonels, 6 to 1, behind the six hit pitching of knuckleballer Steve Peek to end the 22nd renewal of the annual best-of-seven series.

The Bears rapped out ten base hits off the offerings of Charley Wagner and Forrest (Tot) Press, both righthanders, in dethroning the 1939 champions.

For Peek, who hurled a brilliant game, it was his sixteenth victory in 17 games. The lanky righthander will go up to the parent New York Yankees next spring for a tryout, as will six of his teammates.

It was Newark's third triumph in the classic, previous victories being scored in 1932 and 1937 by teams acknowledged as the greatest in the Bears' history. The International now has won 10 series to the association's 12.

Although early titles were largely held by Europeans, Americans have been taking over a fair share of the crowns.

Trolling From Motor Boats Still Under Ban

Commission Refuses To Allow Practice On Certain Lakes

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—The state conservation commission yesterday refused to change state game laws to permit trolling with motor boats in inland game fish waters, despite arguments of some sportsmen that successful trolling for lake trout is impossible without the use of motor boats.

The commission also adopted a lake trout opening season date of April 15 instead of April 13. The order now goes to Governor Heil for final approval.

The commission had received petitions from sportsmen, when Commissioner Mark Catlin, Sr., of Appleton seconded, that motor boat trolling be allowed on such bodies of water as Green Lake, which is well populated with lake trout, but which is large and frequently windy with the result that row boats find their job difficult.

Catlin pointed out that a fast bait is most successful in luring lake trout.

Easy To Evade General Ban

Opponents, however, pointed out that such lawmaking would make it easy to evade the general ban against trolling for smaller game fish. Catlin and others then suggested a concession to allow trolling for lake trout before the opening of the general fishing season on May 15.

Conservation department authorities reported that a recent intensive study of the fish population of Green Lake, one of the most popular of Wisconsin inland fishing waters, reveals it to be more heavily stocked with the prized lake trout than any other inland body in the state. The study was made by Dr. Edward Schneberger, department biologist.

Protect Frogs

More stringent controls covering the commercial taking of frogs and crawfish were adopted by the commission.

Both industries are concentrated largely in the Fox river valley and Green Bay regions, although they also flourish in some of the Mississippi river counties.

The commission adopted a closed season for crawfish extending from March 1 to July 1 and decreed that the minimum size next season will be 3 1/2 inches instead of three inches.

Commissioners also decided upon a closed season on frogs between Dec. 31 and May 15, advancing the former closing date from March 1.

Neither order will interfere with the taking of the species for bait purposes, officials said. They also cited the growth of the frog business in Wisconsin, particularly in the Winnebago area, and explained that crawfishing is particularly important in Green Bay waters where many commercial fishermen use it as a sideline.

National Honors at Stake When Wildcats, Bucks Clash

BY EARL HILLIGAN

Chicago—(4)—A package of dynamite is going to explode in Dyche Stadium Saturday and the repercussions may sound ominous in Minneapolis and Ithaca, N. Y.

Ohio State's powerful Buckeyes will meet the surprising Northwestern Wildcats before an anticipated sell-out crowd of 45,000 in a battle which ranks as one of the day's naturals.

The skirmish, 19th in a series which has seen Ohio State win 12 games and tie one, will bring together two eleven which apparently "have it" this season, both offensively and defensively. More than that, however, the battle should provide a tipoff on the national championship chances of not only the teams involved but also of Minnesota's Gophers and the big red machine of Cornell.

Ohio State, victorious over Pittsburgh and Purdue, will be favored over a Wildcat team which routed Syracuse, 40 to 0. And victory for Ohio State could prove a big stride toward national ranking, what with Minnesota on the Buckeye schedule a week from Saturday and a battle coming Oct. 26 with Cornell, eastern intercollegiate champions who ranked fourth in the final national Associated Press poll in 1939.

An Ohio State victory Saturday and then a win over Minnesota, which has an open date this weekend, could set the stage for a great battle between the Western conference champions and Cornell, which easily beat Colgate and should win handily over Army and Syracuse in its next two starts.

Army barely defeated Williams Saturday while Syracuse didn't show much against Northwestern.

Aside from the national ranking angle which may embellish the battle, Ohio State has good reason for wanting to whip Cornell this season. The big red eleven blasted a hole in the Buckeye record midway in the 1939 campaign, taking a 23 to 14 decision from the Bucks after Ohio State had whipped Missouri, Northwestern and Minnesota in order.

But it's a cinch the O. S. U. coach, Francis Schmidt, isn't thinking of Cornell—yet. He has Northwestern to worry about, then Minnesota. In a season which promises one of the toughest title fights in Big Ten history, no one realizes better than Schmidt that it's better to clean up things in your own back yard before looking for trouble elsewhere.

Gives Out New Plays

Coach Waldorf gave out new plays yesterday and worked his reserve line hard but otherwise refrained from contact work to keep the squad free from injury.

Meantime, Francis Schmidt at Ohio State credited Northwestern with three better than average passers in Bill de Correvont, Red Hahnstein and Paul Soper and sent his squad through an overtime drill on aerial defense.

Pass defense also was stressed at Michigan where Coach Fritz Crisler named a squad of 32 for the game at Harvard Saturday. At Illinois, the varsity stopped freshmen using Southern California plays Bob Falkstein, Naperville, Ill., junior, showed up so well in the defensive drill that he was moved to George Rettinger's right half position.

Coach Bo McMillin juggled his first string Indiana line for the Nebraska clash. Wisconsin got good news when senior and El Lorenz was declared eligible for the Iowa game. A faculty committee reconsidered his case after he had failed to pass a summer school elective course.

Purdue, which opposes Michigan State Saturday, drilled hard on its attack. Iowa held its third consecutive scrimmage. Minnesota idle this week, worked on pass defense in anticipation of such maneuvers against Ohio State a week hence.

Boxing

Clyde (Bulldog) Turner, brilliant center from Hardin-Simmons and No. 1 on the Chicago Bears draft list for this season, is the league's youngest player at 20 years. The Bears' "freshman" is alone at that tender age. Players showing 21 years are rather numerous in the cash-and-carry circuit.

Football Yankees Cop From Cincinnati '11'

New York — (4)—Led by Bill Hutchinson, former Dartmouth backfield ace, the New York Yankees walloped the Cincinnati Bengals 40-13 last night in an American Pro Football league clash.

Hutchinson ran a punt back 85 yards for a score in the third period and shortly after sped 55 yards for another counter after returning an intercepted pass.

Lyceum Program Opens at Waupaca

Waupaca — The first lyceum program of the school year was given at 10:30 Wednesday morning in the high school assembly. The visiting artist was Bob Wood, who gave a "chalk talk." He first made a cartoon of George Washington, then altered the features slightly to represent Abraham Lincoln and then Uncle Sam. Caricatures of four types of school boys followed: the fool, the athlete, the joker, and the scholar.

Congressman Reid Murray arrived at his home in Ogdensburg Wednesday for a brief visit.

As part of observance of national fire prevention week the junior chamber of commerce distributed booklets and posters. Fire prevention questionnaires were sent home to parents of high school children, these papers to be returned and filed. There will be several fire drills of the entire school system.

Men Advised Not to Seek Defense Jobs To Evade Conscription

Washington — (4)— Selective service headquarters advised men today against flocking to defense industries for jobs in the hope of evading the draft.

"The chances for such men being drafted for military training will be increased rather than diminished," said Major Joseph F. Battley, "because one of the first things a local board will want to know about a man claiming occupational deferment is how long he has been on his current job."

"My advice is for men to stay on their present jobs and not flock to defense industries merely for the sake of seeking to avoid selection."

Battley, just back from a 12-state round of conferences with state advisors on occupational deferments, said that the army did not want to conscript any man if his removal from a civilian job would interfere with an industry's productivity, regardless of whether it was engaged on defense orders or not.

Committee Will Ask Board to Buy Present Airport

Only One Member in Favor of Proposed Site North of Oshkosh

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—The aviation committee of the Winnebago county board decided by a 6 to 1 vote yesterday afternoon to recommend purchase of the present Oshkosh airport plus surrounding lands at the special session of the county board tomorrow. Supervisor F. H. Metzger of the town of Clayton cast his lone vote in favor of the proposed site north of Oshkosh.

Other matters to be presented at the county board meeting are proposed county-wide operation of the food stamp plan and approval of the property evaluations drawn up by the equalization committee. Several supervisors yesterday expressed their opinion that the session might last two days.

Chairman Henry Schultz of the aviation committee said yesterday that he understood Congressman Frank B. Keefe would be present at tomorrow's session and that he would be called upon for information regarding federal airport grants. Major F. E. Piasecki, manager of the Milwaukee county airport, also will attend tomorrow's county board meeting.

Options on both the sites have been secured by the aviation committee. The present airport site and the surrounding land totaling 297.7 acres, would cost $75,000. This site has an assessed valuation of $39,575. The purchase price of the site north of Oshkosh at the intersection of county trunks J and JJ would be $68,770.08 for an area of 415.4 acres. The assessed valuation on this site, according to figures furnished the committee by the county treasurer's office, is $52,250.

The committee yesterday received the reports of the A. E. MacMahon Engineering company of Menasha regarding the elevation of the land and the amount of cubic yards of dirt to be removed in leveling the land for runways. The engineers stated that, figuring a runway 100 feet wide, 18,665 cubic yards of dirt would have to be cut down and 18,920 cubic yards of dirt to fill in hollows on the present airport site. On the proposed site north of the city, the cut would be 66,544 cubic yards and the fill, 57,333 cubic yards.

The engineers told the committee that it would cost three times as much to grade the north side site than it would be the present airport site on the south side of Oshkosh. The engineer's report was submitted by A. W. Scholl and H. H. Van Avery, both of Menasha.

The cost of grading the two sites was not determined by the aviation committee as they did not know whether WPA, or private, labor would be used. Should the county board decide to purchase an airport, R. F. Williams, WPA area engineer, offered the services of the WPA in grading the field at yesterday's meeting, saying that there were about 750 men in the county on WPA work.

Supervisor Martin H. Kiltz gave the committee a letter from Mayor George F. Oaks of Oshkosh in which the mayor promised sewers and water connections should the present airport site be purchased by the county board.

Opposition Develops
The Winnebago county board at its August 14 meeting voted in favor of establishing a Class III airport if the desired land could be purchased and federal aid obtained. Since then opposition to a county owned airport has developed and both the Neenah and Menasha city councils have gone on record as opposing the present purchase of a county airport unless it was definitely needed for national defense. They cited an impending increase in state and federal taxes as the reason for opposing an airport expenditure. The Neenah Lions club has also voted opposition to the purchase of a county airport.

The Oshkosh city council, on the other hand, unanimously voted its support of the county purchasing an airport and Mayor George F. Oaks wrote the county board asking that "sectional rivalries be dropped in favor of patriotic duty."

Members of the county aviation committee are Henry Schultz, Neenah, chairman; Julius F. Dreger, Oshkosh, secretary; J. F. Shea, town of Utica, chairman of the county board; Martin H. Kiltz, Oshkosh; Roy C. Kittleson, town of Winches; and F. H. Metzger, town of Clayton.

O'Konsky Hits Red Influence In High Circles

Madison Man Says Fifth Column Has Dangerous Strength

Neenah—"Aubrey Williams, No. 1 communist in Wisconsin, is national director of the NYA: Lovett, former University of Chicago professor, and a communist is governor-general of the Virgin Islands, our first military post in the Caribbean sea, the National Relations Labor board is hogtied by the communist organization of America," declared Alvin O'Konsky, Madison, in an address before the Twin City Business and Professional Women's club Wednesday night in the Valley Inn.

Mr. O'Konsky made his accusations in support of his statement that among the most influential and organized groups in American circles today is the communist organization. "Communists or fellow sympathizers have been appointed to positions of responsibility in federal and state offices," he declared, "and the facts point out that the fifth column is of greater significance, greater effectiveness, greater danger than any of us realize."

"There are countless hundreds of thousands in United States who enjoy the blessings of the last great democracy who would like to see the United States join the rest of the world down the road to dictatorship," O'Konsky contended as he outlined the communistic organization within the country with its 32 national districts. To be a bonafide member of the communist party, a person must be sold on communism, it must be a religion with him. There were 500,000 bonafide members in United States in 1936 with thousands of fellow travelers or fellow sympathizers, he said.

"We underestimate the communistic activity within United States because we do not understand it and its members," the speaker said as he discussed the communistic connections of the American Youth Congress, the National Student Union and the American Youth Council.

With facts and figures, Mr. O'Konsky related to what extent the communistic organization is in power in this country and then discussed briefly the Nazi fifth column activity whose leaders expend some $60,000,000 each year. "It was Washington who said that there might come a time when other countries might seek to destroy America but that it would be from within by undermining the country because it cannot be attacked from outside," the speaker concluded.

Mrs. Viola Kettenhofen, Miss Harriet Kennedy and Miss Letta French were voted into membership of the club during the business session. Miss Florence Snyder, chairman of the finance committee, presented recommendations and a proposed budget of $190 for the ensuing year which the club adopted. The budget includes expenses for speakers and programs, for guest dinners, decorations, dues, delegate expenses, educational fund and yearbook and office supplies.

Neenah—The Twin City Council of Social Agencies, meeting Tuesday evening in the Valley Inn, adjourned until 7.30 Tuesday evening, Oct. 15, because it was decided that more than 50 per cent of the membership should be represented to consider the proposal of a Social Service exchange.

The proposal, should it meet the approval of the Twin City council, would be a joint Social Service exchange with Oshkosh. The Oshkosh Social Service exchange would maintain the central card index with competent personnel; it would provide information on registrations to member agencies promptly; it would assist member agencies with identification of difficult cases because of modifications in spelling or change of family status and it would plan with member agencies the development of procedures of mutual benefit.

Through its advisory committee and its subcommittees, channels for developing Exchange technique uniform policies, interpretation and coordination of inter-agency activities would be possible and an advisory committee of Social Service exchange committees from Oshkosh and Neenah-Menasha councils of Social Agencies would be formed.

Neenah Kiwanis Club Hears Appleton Man; Elects New Officers

Neenah—Results of the election of officers of the Neenah Kiwanis club will be announced Wednesday noon, Oct. 16, at the Valley Inn. Balloting took place at the luncheon meeting yesterday noon.

Paul V. Cary, Appleton, was the speaker, and he talked on "Democracies on Trial." The speaker compared the speed with which the totalitarian governments bring about events to the relatively slow program of the democracies, such as the United States and England.

Cary pointed out to the Kiwanians that because of this, the democracies are at a disadvantage to cope with the totalitarians. He said that the big question today is the proper antidote.

Elmer Radtke, secretary of the chamber of commerce, discussed the Winnebago county airport site controversy, and the club voted to write a letter to the county board protesting the purchase of land until a proper location had been determined.

Neenah—Students at McKinley and Lincoln schools Wednesday set exceptionally good times in fire drills conducted by the Neenah fire department in observance of fire prevention week.

Captains Howard Heup and John Zick talked to students of Washington and Lincoln schools yesterday and they will address Kimberly and Roosevelt school pupils today and Friday.

The fire prevention program is being sponsored by the fire department, Neenah Insurance board and Chamber of Commerce.

Police Hunt Liquor Vendor After Youth Takes Wild Ride

Neenah—Authorities today were puzzling over a problem of how best to dispose of an 18-year-old drunken driver and police were attempting to determine who sold intoxicating liquor to the boy. Police said that as far as they know, it is the first time the youth has been in serious trouble.

He pleaded guilty of drunken driving when arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace Gaylord C. Loehning. The justice postponed sentencing of the boy pending an investigation.

At the arraignment, Justice Loehning scored tavern-keepers and roadhouse operators for selling intoxicating liquor to young boys and girls. "It's a disgrace to go into taverns and roadhouses and find them filled with youngsters drinking beer and whiskey," the justice said.

Hits House, Traffic Signal

Neenah police arrested the boy at 1.25 this morning after his car had struck a home on Center street, barely missed hitting three parked cars on S. Commercial street and failed to negotiate the turn into Winneconne avenue, crashing into the flasher signal standard on the southwest corner. The youth also tried to escape in the police squad car.

Police reported that his car crashed into the home of Mrs. Mary Eisenach, 328 Center street, smashing the front step.

Patrolman Henry Kohfeldt a few minutes later observed the car traveling over 50 miles an hour down S. Commercial street, barely missing three cars parked in front of the Neenah Taxi Line office. He chased the car and when he arrived at the Winneconne avenue intersection a boy was standing in the middle of the street flagging the patrol car.

"There's something wrong with the guy in that car," he told Kohfeldt pointing toward the damaged car on the opposite terrace. Kohfeldt, not knowing that the boy was the driver, started for the other machine, and the youth dashed for

PICTURES IN CAVES

Hundreds of paintings and engravings have been found in caves of Europe, and the question comes, "Why did Stone Age artists make those pictures?"

The answer is not certainly known. People of the Stone Age had no alphabet to use in writing down facts about their work.

The best we can do is to try to figure out possible reasons. The pictures are there, and we can make an effort to explain them.

It is possible that some of the artists worked just for the pleasure of doing so. In long winter evenings, they may have found it amusing to see how well they could make images of animals they had seen.

That is only one of several possible reasons why artists spent hours or days on outlines of bison, reindeer and other animals. It is likely that some artists had different reasons, connected with hunting or religion.

Here and there in a cave, we find marks on the walls which probably were made by stone-pointed spears. Often the marks are inside the outlines of game animals.

We may suppose that Stone Age hunters practiced throwing spears at images of beasts. By this practice they may have hoped to improve their skill for the next time they went hunting.

Quite a number of the pictures are life size or nearly so. They may have been used in contests to show how well different members of the tribe could hurl spears from a distance of, say, 15 or 20 feet.

More common, perhaps, was the making of pictures which had to do with religion. Among the American Indians, animals were used as "totems," and each was held to be sacred by a special clan.

Only a few Stone Age pictures show the outlines of people. The artists seem to have been much more interested in animals than in human beings.

One picture in the Cave of Three Brothers in France is of much interest. It seems to be an outline of a man dressed to imitate an animal. Perhaps he was a Stone Age "medicine man."

How did Stone Age artists obtain light to paint pictures on the walls of caves? That is one of the things Uncle Ray will discuss tomorrow.

New York — Dear Staff: This is not my original idea—but it certainly has my hearty endorsement.

Its author is an upstate exhibitor (Albany, I remember correctly) who's here at the Warwick hotel. Last night he introduced himself and spoke his piece.

In spite of all, the picture is a million dollar epic, a clamorous gal and super-casts, the real backbone of the industry (the contents) is the lowly western, the action thriller.

Not only are such pictures "life insurance" to the average exhibitor—who knows that fans will flock to see them—but they are also the only picture which consistently win the good will of today's kid—who happen to be tomorrow's adult ticket buyers.

Stars like Gene Autry, Bill Boyd and Roy Rogers are major heroes to Young America—and, unlike a great many more publicized celebs, they feel enough responsibility to keep the kids' confidence by avoiding on-screen smut and off-screen scandal. In view of these facts my exhibitor friend made this suggestion: Since Hollywood's Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences is now handing out special awards each year for meritorious service to the industry, it should give deserved recognition to westerns and western stars.

I second that motion! I've talked with enough fans to know that Autry, for instance, is far more popular in the country at large than many a screen Romeo who gets ten times as much publicity. He—and his fellows—deserve not only recognition but gratitude from the entire industry.

Corn Crop Small, Prices are Higher

Bangboards Rattle As Farmers Harvest The Year's Crop

BY FRANKLIN MULLIN
Chicago —(7)—Bangboards were rattling again in the broad corn belt today as farmers harvested the 1940 crop, smallest in four years but worth more on a government loan supported market than any crop since 1937.

Although picking and husking will not reach a climax for several days, mechanical equipment and brawny men already were at work plowing new corn on a record-breaking carry-over accumulated during the past four seasons. Cobs, size, bins and steel tanks throughout the belt now hold corn grown in 1937, 1938, 1939 and 1940.

The new crop, which has been maturing rapidly in recent weeks, does not compare in size or quality with its recent predecessors, grain men said. As a result, the total domestic supply, including carry-over of about 600,000,000 bushels, is expected to be about 300,000,000 smaller than last year.

However, the prospective harvest of about 2,300,000,000 bushels, at prices 7 to 8 cents higher in the futures market than a year ago, would have a market value of about $1,350,000,000, compared with a valuation at this time last year of $1,300,000,000 for the 2,619,000,000 bushel 1939 crop.

Trades pointed out that current livestock prices indicate that producers can convert corn into meat on as favorable a basis as existed a year ago.

For best grades of old cash corn, Chicago dealers were paying from around 63 cents to almost 75 cents, or 13 to 14 cents more than a year ago.

A large portion of the new crop will go into farm storage facilities which have been cleared by shipment of government-owned and loan corn to terminals and points where steel storage tanks are located. How much of this corn eventually will be put up as collateral for loans will depend on market prices and the loan rate.

Police Chief and Judge Hit Hard During Traffic Debate

Chicago —(7)—Who is to blame for inadequate enforcement of traffic laws? The courts, says Police Chief W. K. Ingram of South Bend, Ind. Traffic cops, says Municipal Judge Perry A. Frey of Cleveland, Ohio.

Their debate on the subject of "What is wrong with traffic enforcement" highlighted a session of the National Safety Congress Wednesday.

Chief Ingram termed the judiciary "too heavy, moss-grown and antiquated—a jolly in the midst of streamlined traffic."

"In 40 years the courts haven't even changed attitudes, to say nothing of providing new machinery of court procedure to cope with the modern motor car," he added.

"The average judge is just plain bored—he doesn't take traffic cases seriously. They don't have the 'oomph' of a nice assault and battery. How can a judge turn from a perfectly fascinating case of wife-beating to an innocent-looking charge of driving under the influence of liquor and keep his proper perspective?"

Judge Frey countered with assertions that many traffic officers fail to provide evidence sufficient for conviction, are often uncouth low-brows parading highways for the purpose of scaring, ridiculing and browbeating the motoring public.

"The traffic cop who greets the motorist with 'Where's the fire?' or 'Who do you think you are—Barney Oldfield?' does more to break down public respect for traffic law enforcement than any other factor," the judge averred.

Applies for License To Sell Beer in City

Herbert T. Bork, Oshkosh, yesterday applied for a license to sell beer at 618 W. Wisconsin avenue, a new bowling alley now under construction, according to E. E. Sager, city clerk. The application will be considered by the city council's license committee.

Chiropractors Will Meet at Eau Claire

Milwaukee—(7)—A resolution urging cooperation "toward the common end of maintaining the health of the industrial worker" was adopted Tuesday at the annual convention of the Wisconsin Chiropractic association.

The resolution stated that industrial workers who subscribe to health service programs sponsored by organized labor were not offered chiropractic treatment. This treatment should be "available on demand for those workers who have subscribed to a health service program," the resolution said.

Dr. E. J. Wollschlaeger, of La Crosse, and Dr. Van Kuhn, of Milwaukee, were reelected president and treasurer respectively.

Other officers elected were Dr. A. J. Manius, of Racine, vice president, and Dr. Joseph Kurucz, of Cudahy, secretary. Eau Claire was chosen for the 1941 convention city.

Public Hearing

MENASHA'S FIRE EQUIPMENT—Menasha has one of the smallest full-time paid fire departments for a city of its size in the state. Shown above is one shift of three men and Fire Chief Paul Theimer with the equipment outside the fire station located in the city hall. The equipment includes a hook and ladder truck purchased in 1925, the chief's car which is used to answer drowning rescue calls and the 750-gallon pumper which was purchased in 1921. The latter will be succeeded in November by a 1,000 gallon pumper fire truck as the chief piece of fire-fighting equipment in the city. In case of a fire, a light flashes in the police station, at the upper left of the picture which was taken from the top of the Eagles club, and the desk sergeant calls the three full-time men who are off-duty as well as the 5 call firemen. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Menasha's Fire Department Is Small; So Is Annual Fire Damage

This is one of a number of articles describing the fire fighting equipment and personnel in the towns, villages and cities of this area. They are designed to acquaint readers with the types of fire fighting apparatus and systems in vogue in this area. Another article will appear in the near future.

Menasha—The city of Menasha has one of the smallest fire departments in the state for a city of its size but annual fire loss and insurance rates are low. The department has a chief, six paid full-time men and five call firemen but modern equipment and an adequate number of fire hydrants, over 350 in an area of about 4 square miles, keep insurance rates low.

A new 1,000 gallon per minute Mack pumper fire truck has been purchased by the council and is being constructed now. It is to be delivered to the city early in November. The council also plans to add two more full-time men to the department, bringing each shift to four men. It is expected that the addition in men and equipment will result in further reductions in insurance rates.

The first fire department in Menasha was organized in 1867 with 50 volunteers who pulled hand-drawn carts whenever there was an alarm. Stations for the carts were on Chute street west of the triangle, on Tayco street south of the present Brin building and on Manitowish street between First and Second streets.

In case of a fire the men would string hose from the river dock or a reservoir and pump water by hand. Later a steam pump was purchased and horses drew the apparatus to fires. The city hall was built in 1885 and the horses were stabled at the rear of the part now used to house the trucks.

Motorized in 1921
The department was motorized in January, 1921, with the purchase of a combination pumper and hose cart of 750 gallons per minute capacity which still is the chief fire-fighting apparatus of the city and will be until the new truck arrives.

Three full-time firemen were hired then. Paul Theimer, who was named captain two years later, Jack Dombrowski and John Miller, all still members of the department. The hook and ladder truck was purchased in 1925 and John Stommel was added to the department. He retired in 1939.

Joe Miller retired as chief of the department in 1937 after 42 years on the volunteer department. Paul Theimer was named chief then. Present members of the paid department include Jack Dombrowski, assistant chief; John Miller, captain; Arthur Gutzman, who became a member in 1926; Ed Heim, 1929; Connie Rippl, 1933, and William Akstulewicz, 1939.

The five men of the call department answer all general alarms. They include Philip Miller, a member since 1914; Wolfgang Rippl, 1917; William Zeininger, 1922; Ernest Kroll, 1939, and Roy Verboven, 1940. They are paid $110 annually.

The pumper truck carries 1,200 feet of hose, a fresh-air mask, multi-versal nozzle, foamite generator, deluge set, all-service masks, 400 feet of 1 1/2 inch hose, and other equipment. The department has three types of hand extinguishers, soda-acid, carbon tetrachloride, and foamite. The hook and ladder truck has over 200 feet of ladders of various lengths. Both pieces of motorized equipment are American LaFrance construction.

Will Buy More Hose

The council has advertised for 1,000 more feet of 2 1/2 inch hose which will bring the total to nearly 4,000 feet. Hose lasts from 10 to 12 years with the care given by the department. After a run it is washed and dried before being repacked. If there are no runs over a period of time, the firemen change the hose from the drying tower and repack it to avoid cracks and wear.

All calls come in by telephone. In case of a general alarm, the fireman who takes the call flicks a switch which indicates the ward and section in which the fire is located. A light turns on in the police department which indicates the location and the desk sergeant immediately calls the men who are off duty and the call men to give them the location. They go to the fire in their automobiles.

Although the paid men are on duty 24 hours and then are off 24, they are subject to call at all times. The whistle at the Strang Paper plant, which is blown without charge by the firm, also indicates the ward in which the fire is. Fire Chief Paul Theimer worked out the system by which the police are notified of the location of the fire. Both trucks answer general alarms but for silent calls or rescue calls either one may be used, depending on the nature of the call.

The department averages about 100 calls a year. The old high school fire on March 21, 1936, with an estimated loss of $214,000, was the biggest fire in the history of the city. The department has had no serious accident, property damage or collision in the 20 years it has been motorized. Few firemen have been injured seriously while on duty. William Akstulewicz was off duty for six months from injuries received fighting the Tuchscherer building fire in January, 1940.

Regular Inspections

In addition to fire fighting, the firemen conduct quarterly fire inspections. The downtown district, mercantile and manufacturing buildings and schools are inspected quarterly while the outlying stores are inspected every six months. The firemen put in 83 hours on duty a week and make the inspections on the days when they are off duty. They also repair equipment and take care of the city hall. A modern electric kitchen has been installed in the city hall for the convenience of the men who prepare their noon and evening meals on their 24 hour shifts. They did most of the work themselves.

Annual cost of operation is about $31,400, including $18,100 for hydrant rental paid to the city utility. Water is supplied through the city mains at a hydrant pressure of 45 to 55 pounds, depending on the size of main and location. That pressure is sufficient to fight small fires without the booster pumps. The water is stored in the city's 500,000 gallon tank located on the highest ground in the city at the top of a 100-foot tower.

At present the department is under-manned with only six full-time firemen to almost 11,000 population. The department has 45 miles of streets to cover and the longest run is 1.2 miles from the fire station.

The department is under the jurisdiction of the fire and police commission which appoints firemen, maintains a reserve list, and generally acts as an advisory body. The financial end is handled by the common council which makes all purchases for the department.

Members of the fire and police department are J. W. Herrbold, president; R. G. DuCharme, secretary; Herman Vetter, A. C. Homan, and Albert Stachowicz. Members of the fire committee of the common council are Edward Zeininger, chairman, John Scanlon, and Walter O'Brien.

Scout Troop Will be Organized at Church

The second in a series of three boy scout training sessions will be held at Zion Lutheran school next Tuesday night under the direction of Rudolph Kubitz and Kenneth Pinkerton.

A new scout troop will be organized at the church after the training series has been completed. Nine men, who will become members of the troop committee, attended the first session Monday night of this week.

Rural School Pupils Take First Train Ride

Ten pupils of the Cedardale school, town of Dale, enjoyed their first train ride Saturday when they went from Hortonville to New London. They visited the city police department, fire department, public library and telephone office. A picnic supper was held at Alicia park. Miss Blanche McIntyre, their teacher, and Miss Emma Maché, accompanied the children on the trip.

Granted Permit To Erect Dwelling

Lester Wiese, 2 Sherman place, yesterday was granted a permit by the city building inspector to build a residence at 1620 N. Richmond street. It will be 32 feet long and 26 feet wide with a garage, 12 by 20 feet in size. Cost is estimated at $3,500.

The Appleton Cooperative, 403 N. Appleton street, was given a permit to build an addition to its filling station, 12 feet, 8 inches wide and 25 feet, 8 inches long. It will cost about $1,500.

The Town Taxi company, 212 N. Appleton street, received permission to install a gasoline pump at a cost of about $40.

Weed Cutting Costs For Year are $2,581

Weed cutting in Appleton this year cost the city $2,581.78, according to E. E. Sager, city clerk. Weed cutting assessments which will be returned to the city by property owners total $812.60. Last year's cost was $2,130.12 and assessments returned to the city totaled $575.
